

14 ARE INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASHES HERE

T. A. Haley Is Seriously Cut in Accident at Auburn Avenue and Jackson Street Sunday.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR TWO AUTOISTS

Two Machines Are Abandoned After Crashes—L. P. Hammond Is in Critical Condition.

Fourteen persons were hurt in week-end automobile accidents, eight of them Sunday; five autoists narrowly escaped serious injuries in a crash of two machines, and police are hunting two drivers, who escaped, it is said, without stopping to aid their victims, according to reports Sunday night by police and Grady hospital officials.

Miss Molly Biddy, 26, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Biddy, of 330 Woodward avenue, was knocked down by an automobile in front of her home. She was cut about the face and chin, both knees, and her left shoulder, and Grady doctors believe she may be suffering from concussion of the brain.

Miss Biddy told doctors that all she remembers is that she had stepped from the sidewalk into the street when she was struck. The name of the autoist was not learned by police.

Suffers Broken Nose.

E. H. Chapman, stopping at the Aragon hotel, received a broken nose Sunday night when he slipped to the pavement while getting out of an automobile. He was treated at Grady hospital and allowed to return to his hotel.

Mrs. B. McLendon, 39, of 58 DeKalb street, was taken to Grady hospital in a hysterical condition, suffering from bruises received in an automobile accident, details of which have not been learned by police. She is not considered in a serious condition.

J. G. New, of 50 North Howard street, was severely shaken up when his automobile was wrecked in a collision with another car driven by a negro, whose name the police have not learned.

New was going east on Woodward avenue and the negro south on Martin street. After the accident the negro jumped out, abandoned his car, and fled.

Witnesses told Call Officers M. B. Johnson and C. B. Hughes that the negro was intoxicated. The car he was driving was brought to the police station. It was badly damaged.

Smyrna Man Hurt.

S. J. Wonock, of Smyrna, who is visiting his parents at 255 Lawton street, was badly bruised at Gordon and Ashby streets early at night when his car collided with a machine driven by an unidentified person, according to police report.

Wonock told Officer Lonnie S. Stone that he was going east on Gordon and as he turned into Ashby a large touring car, which was going north on Ashby, struck his machine. He stated the car did not stop and he was unable to obtain the license number. The accident was witnessed by Mrs.

Study of Sleep Is Being Made By Scientists

Professor of Physiology and 12 Students Investigating Mystery of Nature.

Pittsburgh, Pa., November 1.—(AP) Scientists at the Mellon Institute of industrial research are engaged in an exhaustive study of sleep, one of nature's deepest mysteries.

The work is in charge of Dr. H. M. Johnson, physiologist of national repute, formerly of Ohio State university, and 12 students from the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology have offered themselves as "subjects."

Absence of definite knowledge of what sleep is, what conditions improve it, how it can be measured, how much of it is required for the most beneficial results, and what bedding paraphernalia is best fitted to produce sleep are conditions under observation.

Special apparatus, laboratories and testing rooms have been established, and the students, who are quartered in a fraternity house, are observed during both sleeping and waking hours.

A fellowship has been arranged, the donor believing that study and research can improve health, efficiency and comfort of the general public through better provisions for rest than now provided.

Experiment and study will extend over a period of years.

Open Negotiations With Italians Today Upon Funding Debt

TRIAL OF MITCHELL TO GET UNDER WAY TODAY AT CAPITAL

Air Officer's Lawyer Is Working To Get Colonel's Views on Aviation in Court Record.

FEARS ATTEMPTS TO BLOCK EVIDENCE

Mitchell Said To Have Other Revelations To Make in Regard to Faults of Air Service.

Washington, November 1.—(AP)—The Mitchell court-martial, impeded to date by a mass of technicalities, will get under way fully Monday.

Deprived through precedent of getting President Coolidge as a witness, Mitchell's counsel is now prepared to surmount any difficulties it may meet in the way of getting before the military court a full statement of the beliefs of the air colonel on the condition of the country's aviation.

Fears Attempt To Block.

Representative Reid, chief of Mitchell's civilian counsel, anticipates that the prosecution may attempt to block efforts of Mitchell to elaborate on his charges of maladministration. If no other way presents itself, he will endeavor, through cross-examination of the prosecution's witnesses, to weave into the court's record additional revelations said to be in Mitchell's possession in an effort to present his case as fully as possible.

Unofficially, it has been declared that the flying officer has a number of instances of alleged faulty handling of the air branch of defense which, it is claimed, will tend to substantiate some of his charges.

There is a possibility, too, that Mitchell himself will take the witness stand.

Will Overlook No Chance.

No chance will be overlooked in the desire to get the record straight on the case before the court and the public in its fullest. It is along this line that his counsel has prepared his defense because, it is pointed out, not even Mitchell will deny that he issued statements in which he bitterly denounced the service of which he was a part.

Every effort will be made during the week to secure the attendance of Secretary of War Davis as a witness. It is not at all improbable that Davis willingly will accept an invitation to appear to tell the court what he had to do to bring the case to the court.

The prosecution on Monday will make what constitutes its opening of the case. Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate, will outline for the defense and the court the definite charges made against Mitchell. Witnesses will be called and the actual trial will be on.

DRY LEAGUE FACES CRISIS THIS WEEK

Convention Regarded as Most Crucial of League's History, According to Leaders of Association.

BY EARL J. JOHNSON.

Chicago, November 1.—(AP)—The Anti-Saloon League of America's national convention, opening here this week, is regarded by "dry" leaders as the most critical in the league's history. J. F. Ebbert, chairman, declared in an interview.

"Crucial work is to be done," said Ebbert. "The present agitation for modification of the prohibition law against the amendment that has been made since its passage."

The chairman, who is head of the league in Illinois, revealed that the national organization will center the bulk of its efforts in the future on the so-called "wet."

"Law enforcement work by the league is important but it is not nearly as important as our work against organizations that would modify the eighteenth amendment," Ebbert said. "For the first time since the passage of the prohibition law its opponents are nationally organized and are reaping the fruits of organization. They have been meeting regularly in the last year in numerous local groups to effect modification."

"On their side are arrayed the mighty millions of the liquor interests. When we secured passage of prohibition we only half won the battle. Our fight now is to keep it on the statute books just as it is."

Prohibition enforcement is progressing nicely, Major Ebbert said. He believes violations are dwindling constantly.

Arrival in Washington Sunday of Commission, Headed by Count Volpi, Without Ceremony.

TOTAL ITALIAN DEBT OVER TWO BILLIONS

Conferences To Start at Virtually Same Point Where They Were Dropped in Summer.

Washington, November 1.—(AP)—The Italian government's debt funding commission arrived in Washington late today, prepared to reopen tomorrow the conferences on a settlement of that nation's obligations to the United States, which have been in abeyance several months.

No ceremony attended the arrival of the commission, headed by Count Volpi, the finance minister, and few functions are planned for tomorrow in advance of its first scheduled joint session with the American debt commission, except formal visits to the state department, the treasury and probably the white house.

The finance minister's intention is to start talking business as quickly as possible. The first meeting had been set for 4 o'clock, and it is likely that the two commissions at that time will attempt to map out a course of procedure for the further conferences. In this connection, it was suggested today that a committee would be named by each commission and that the real negotiations would take place between the two small groups.

Debt Over $2,000,000,000.

The Americans and Italians alike recognize the difficulties which confront them in renewing the conversations. Italy's debt, as calculated at the treasury, is $2,138,543,882, of which $1,646,800,198 is principal and the remainder accrued interest. Both commissions realize that careful thought will be required to arrive at a formula of settlement providing satisfactory and workable means of liquidation of such a sum.

The Italians will start the negotiations well informed as to the general views of the Americans. The conference tomorrow will serve in a measure to pick up matters where they were dropped when the first commission, which included Ambassador de Martino and Dr. Mario Alberti, departed in the mid-summer. Both are members of the present commission, and Dr. Alberti has spent several months in Rome compiling data on Italy's financial and economic condition and prospects, which already have been placed before the American commissioners.

Eliminate Many Stages.

Officials believe, therefore, that the new conference will be able to eliminate many of the usual preliminary stages, but there is no attempt anywhere to minimize the problem and the American commission under the guidance of Secretary Mellon will enter the conference with a desire to avoid all obstacles which may threaten the negotiations.

The policy of basing debt funding arrangements on a basis of capacity to pay will be applied to Italy, Under-Secretary Winston of the treasury said today, as strictly as has been the case with all other powers whose obligations have been funded. He expects

Each Peasant Family Given Two Orphans

Moscow Soviet, However, Provides Compensation for Their Support.

Moscow, November 1.—(AP)—Soviet Russia has resorted to a novel method of solving its orphan problem. The Moscow soviet today decided to place two orphan children in each peasant family in the villages, allotting as compensation for their support either a small grant of land or from five to ten rubles monthly for each child.

The children will be provided with clothing and given ten rubles each for their further needs. The local village soviets will act as foster-families for the orphans while in the villages, making provision for their education along communistic lines.

Child vagrancy is one of the sorest problems with which present-day Russia has to deal. All over the country there are great hordes of homeless boys and girls who have swollen the ranks of vagrants in the cities and become a positive menace to society.

Official figures place the number of juvenile vagrants at 300,000. Big cities like Moscow, Leningrad, Kharkov and Kiev are infested with ragged, hungry, half-naked urchins, who sleep in the streets and become common mendicants.

The decision of the Moscow authorities is based on the conviction that the care of these waifs is in part the responsibility of the Russian people, and the government, accordingly, has appealed to the peasants to give them shelter and care.

PACIFIST ROLE GIVEN TO GARY BY BIOGRAPHER

Steel King Portrayed as Mediator and Peace-Maker in Industry in Book by Ida Tarbell.

STORY OF TRUST'S FORMATION TOLD

Refuses To Permit Even Directors of Corporation To Know of Unfilled Tonnage Report.

New York, November 1.—(AP)—Ida M. Tarbell, author of the "Life of Abraham Lincoln" and "History of the Standard Oil Company," has invaded the territory of steel in her latest work, just published and copyrighted by D. Appleton & Co. "The Life of Elbert H. Gary: the Story of Steel," she portrays the life of the head of the steel industry in this country and intimately pictures his quarrels and disagreements with other financiers over his labor and stock market policies.

At the time of the formation of the big steel trust, that was later subjected to many government suits and investigations, Miss Tarbell writes of J. Pierpont Morgan's part in acquiring the steel plants offered to him by Charles Schwab. Morgan submitted the proposition made to him by Schwab to Mr. Gary. Mr. Gary returned it with notations of his own and when the deal was going through Morgan told Gary "now there's one thing I want understood: If I go into this you are to go with me, not only as my lawyer, but as my friend—that is you are to stand by me."

Morgan and Rockefeller.

In attempting to get the Rockefeller ore for the new combine Gary found that Morgan's dislike of Rockefeller stood in the way. Chided by Gary, Morgan went to Rockefeller and parlayed with him for the ore lands. The Rockefeller offer was $5,000,000 more than Gary's outside figure, but Morgan said that the price would not stand in the way, and directed Gary to write out an acceptance.

She interestingly portrays the long conference between Morgan and John W. Gates, who was determined to get a record price for his wire holdings. Gary took up the parley where Morgan had walked out angrily. He eventually forced Gates to sell by having Morgan enter the room and announce that unless Gates sold his wire plants Morgan's interests would build on their own and force Gates and his associates to the wall.

"Morgan was as tickled as a kid going home from a football game," Gary said in describing the victory.

Miss Tarbell draws her word picture of the modern master of steel as exemplified in the person of Mr. Gary as that of a pacifist. Nowhere does she make him the militant enemy or foe of labor, but shows him as the mediator and the peacemaker. An instance of the strict Methodist training of the steel corporation head is given in his refusal to continue matching twenty-dollar gold pieces for the fees of absentee members of the board of directors.

Gary Refuses "Tips."

No relative of Gary nor any one in his employ, Miss Tarbell writes, has ever or will ever benefit by advance information. His own son would not be "tipped off" to enable him to speculate profitably in the steel market by Gary, although he might be in possession of news and information that would make such speculation profitable for friends or acquaintances.

Miss Tarbell says that Mr. Gary arranged it with the controller of the corporation that the quarterly financial reports of the company were not given out to anyone, not even himself, until they were placed before the board of directors at 3 o'clock, when the market had closed, and at which time they were also given out to the public.

Miss Tarbell quotes Gary as saying: "As a matter of fact, I always

Two Men Killed PILFERING COAL

Railway Detective Held for Murder After Slaying Man and Son in Road Yards.

Bayonne, N. J., November 1.—Two lives already have gone to pay the price of a few bags of coal and a third may be added to the cost of the bit of fuel.

Joseph Jakra died here of wounds received when Dock L. Stone, a private detective employed by the Lehigh Valley railroad, fired upon him and his brother, Andrew, as they were pilfering coal from a freight car.

Andrew, 19, was instantly killed by the detective's fire. Hope was held out for Joseph's recovery but he died in a Bayonne hospital.

The state of New Jersey will ask that Stone's life be added to the toll for the shooting. Held without bail, he "will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law for the dastardly crime," Dr. Bert Daly, county physician and commissioner of the Bayonne department of safety, said.

Feeling against the detective is high and he has been transferred to the Hudson county jail for safety.

EX-MAYOR OF GARY, INDIANA, CONVICTED ON RUM CHARGE FREED FROM FEDERAL PRISON

FRANCE PLANNING NEW DEBT PARLEY AT U. S. CAPITAL

Paris Government May Send Henry Berenger to Renew Funding Negotiations at Washington.

DAESCHNER RECALL DENIED AT PARIS

New Conference Would Be Benefited by Lesson Learned at Last Unsuccessful Meet, Is Belief.

Paris, November 1.—France contemplates an early resumption of negotiations to fund her debt to the United States, and is considering sending Senator Henry Berenger to Washington for that purpose.

It is understood that Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, has indicated to Premier Painleve the desire of the American government that negotiations be resumed as soon as the situation permits. Painleve is anxious to resume discussion at the earliest possible moment.

There is no question of recalling Ambassador Daeschner from Washington, it was announced at the French foreign office Sunday. Berenger merely would be charged with a temporary mission to the United States. The report that Berenger would succeed Daeschner, widely circulated in the United States by a news association, was described as "fantastic" at the foreign office.

If Berenger should journey to Washington to essay the task which defeated Joseph Caillaux, he would bring to the problem a full knowledge of what has gone before, for he accompanied the deposed minister of finance to Washington as a member of the debt commission which failed to effect a settlement a month ago.

Queer Thief Steals Broom In Home Raid

Theft Provides Real Puzzle to Police—Burglar Narrowly Escapes.

Atlanta police and detectives today will spread their widely-known drag-net over the city of Atlanta in a search for a new broom. Incidentally, they will make a search, too, for the man who stole the broom.

The theft has provided an occasion worthy of the genius of a Sherlock Holmes, or a Legoo. As a result, the master minds of the Atlanta force will be on the job bright and early today in a hunt for clues. In the meantime, in some part of Atlanta, the broom doubtless is doing its duty, just as it does in many other homes of this city.

The broom disappeared early Sunday from the home of B. C. Klein, 222 Washington street, and with it went $50 in cash. A part of the money was taken from the pockets of Klein's trousers, and the rest from his wife's pocketbook. It was while the thief was rummaging through the pocketbook for the cash that Klein was awakened.

When he perceived the thief, Klein yelled, and the intruder dove through a window, breaking a number of panes and tearing out a part of the window sash. With him went the broom. Klein could not give a description of the man.

So today police are searching for "The Man With the Broom." Klein says he can have the broom, if he will send back the money.

Pistol and Bricks Employed By Cave Man in His Wooing

MISS ROBERTS NARROWLY ESCAPES WEDDING

Miss Allene Roberts, who lives on Fairview avenue, narrowly escaped being married early Sunday morning by a cave man autoist, who came to her house, accompanied by two friends, according to police reports.

One of the men was dressed in a policeman's uniform, the other two in civilian's clothes, and all three apparently were in an intoxicated condition. Miss Roberts told Call Officers Hitecock and Bishop.

In the house with Miss Roberts was Miss Rosie Hight. The men came to the house and engaged in conversation with the girls.

One of the two men, who was dressed as a civilian, insisted on Miss Roberts marrying him. When she refused he drew a pistol and fired several shots at random, she stated. According to the story told police by the girls the cave man suitor of Miss Roberts was James Wilson, wanted at the city stockade for escaping. They said that in the house with them at the time were Mrs. Bertha Thrallkill, Miss Ollie Roberts and Corporal W. M. Lewis, stationed at Fort McPherson.

After the shooting the three men went away. They returned in a short while and found the door locked. After falling in an effort to gain entrance, the visitors gathered several bricks and tossed them through a window. When call officers arrived they found several bricks on one of the beds, they stated.

The matter is being investigated by Acting Chief Jett and Captain Harper, of the plain clothes department.

FARM LEGISLATION WILL BE CONFINED TO MARKETING BILL

Measure Drafted by Secretary Jardine Expected To Take Center of Stage in Next Congress.

Washington, November 1.—(AP)—Farm legislation, with administration support to be proposed at the next session of congress will be confined, in the opinion of congressional leaders, to a cooperative marketing bill drafted by Secretary Jardine with the advice of a score of cooperative representatives throughout the country.

When congress convenes, the secretary of agriculture will have ready a bill calling for an appropriation of $250,000 to create a division of cooperative marketing in the bureau of agricultural economics to foster cooperative marketing of the major agricultural products.

For several weeks, Mr. Jardine has conferred with cooperative leaders in an effort to coordinate their views. The conferences have developed that some of the cooperative associations were opposed to any federal supervision of their operations while others were in favor of the department of agriculture extending its work along these lines.

Although the bill is expected to include a provision for an advisory commission of the agricultural department consisting of cooperative leaders, there was a sharp division on this point among those called in by the secretary. One protest came from the national council of cooperatives, which objects to the appointment of a commission on the ground that such a body might infringe on its authority.

Since early in his administration, Secretary Jardine has regarded cooperative marketing as one of the most vital movements for the relief of agriculture. Before submitting the bill to congress, however, he hopes to obtain the support of all cooperative organizations in an effort to sidestep the difficulties encountered by cooperative measures at the last session when they were attacked by existing cooperative associations on the ground that such legislation would give too much centralized control in Washington.

Positive indications have been given that the supporters of the principles of the McNary-Haugen export bill again will be active in congress, but unless these forces obtain the support of the administration, the leaders do not regard these activities seriously.

WAYS AND MEANS BODY TO BEGIN SHAPING OF BILL

Committee Plans To Go Into Executive Session This Week After Hearings Are Completed.

Washington, November 1.—(AP)—After two weeks of consultation with representatives of taxpayers and prominent economists, the house ways and means committee will start work this week on actual revision of the revenue law.

The public hearings will be continued tomorrow and Tuesday and on Wednesday the committee will go into executive session to appraise the reductions and eliminations which are to take off the federal tax burden.

Income taxpayers will receive the major share of the relief, Secretary Mellon already having proposed a reduction of $140,000,000 in these levies. Most of the remainder of the available surplus for reduction will apply to special taxes on various forms of business and to the inheritance tax.

No preliminary bill has been prepared and leaders of both parties on the committee have declared they want to see a measure worked out in the committee on a non-partisan basis.

The committee has asked Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, to appear tomorrow for testimony on the alcohol tax. Retail druggists and proprietary dealers have urged a cut in this rate, declaring the present tax provides extra profits for bootleggers, but hampers legitimate business, while the United Drug Manufacturers' association has opposed any change, contending a reduction would increase the production of harmful concoctions to be sold as medicine.

TROOPS IN ARMORY FOR NEGRO'S TRIAL

First of Assault Cases To Go on Trial Today at Asheville—Similar Case To Follow It.

Asheville, N. C., November 1.—(AP) Members of troop F, cavalry, North Carolina national guard, tonight were ordered to their armory to be ready for a call in the event Adjutant General Metts or Sheriff E. M. Mitchell think their services are needed tomorrow morning, when Alvin Karpis, negro, goes on trial on a charge of criminally attacking a white woman on Sunset mountain, near this city, in September.

Indications tonight were that there would be no necessity for calling out the troops, but authorities said that everything would be in readiness should the slightest disposition be shown to cause trouble.

Judge A. M. Stick, of Monroe, who will preside over this week's term of superior court, arrived in the city this afternoon and was in conference with Solicitor J. Edward Swain tonight. Following this conference, it was said that Karpis will be placed on trial tomorrow. The negro is held in the Mecklenburg county jail at Charlotte and is not expected to be brought to Asheville before the opening of court tomorrow morning.

Following the trial of Karpis, Preston Neely, another negro, will be placed on trial on a charge of criminally attacking a white woman in West Asheville about two weeks ago, the third of a series of similar crimes.

FOUR CINCINNATI OFFICERS IN RUM CASES RELEASED

Men Freed Include Mayor or Johnson, Sergeant Heidenreich, Haff, Donovan and Mitchell.

POLICEMEN VISIT ATLANTA FRIENDS

Releases Follow Paroles of Haar Boys, C. C. Tuten, and Richard Bailey, of Savannah Gang.

The exodus of principals in big liquor conspiracy cases in the United States from the federal prison here, where they have been serving short terms, continued Sunday when four members of the Cincinnati police ring and one of the leaders in the Gary, Indiana, system were released on parole.

Those released are: Gary, Indiana—Former Mayor C. O. Johnson. Cincinnati, Ohio—Sergeant John Heidenreich, Patrolmen Haff and Donovan, and Prohibition Agent "Red" Mitchell.

Visit Acquaintances.

The released prisoners spent several hours in Atlanta visiting acquaintances here after their release and then left for their homes. The men have been released in care of their respective states, and cannot leave these states without express permission from federal officials, until their full term is up.

Release of the Gary and Cincinnati prisoners is another step in clearing from the local penitentiary rolls all the leading offenders in big liquor cases in this country.

George Remus, millionaire Cincinnati dealer in illicit liquors, was released early in September when his term was completed, was re-arrested, and taken to Dayton, where the case against him there was quashed, and now is to be tried in St. Louis on another charge.

Haar Boys Released.

Since that time Fred Haar, Sr., Fred Haar, Jr., Carl and Willie Haar, and Graham Baughn, of Savannah; C. C. Tuten, of New York; Richard Bailey, of Savannah, and others have been freed by the parole board, and Morris Sweetwood, of Cincinnati, police and prohibition forces who were caught in the federal net, and sent to the pen here. Parole of all 30 men was recommended at the last meeting of the parole board here, it is understood, but the four released today are the first to get out, it is stated. The other applications are still believed to be in the hands of Attorney General Sargent.

VETERAN SWALLOWS MEDAL HE WAITED 7 YEARS TO GET

London, November 1.—Charles Vincent waited seven years for government red tape to unwind from around his war medal.

He received it finally, but while he was showing it to members of his family it came off his rainbow-bued ribbon, and Vincent absent-mindedly stuck in his coat pocket, which also contained some peppermint creams.

Yes, and absent-mindedly he swallowed the last of the mints. It was removed undamaged at a hospital near Vincent's home in the suburb of Hounslow.

'Book Sailor' Ends Globe Trip In 34-Foot Boat He Built

FOUR YEARS SPENT IN WORLD CRUISE

San Pedro, Calif., November 1.—Four years ago they called Harry Pidgeon crazy when he started on his trip around the world alone in a 34-foot yawl.

Pidgeon had never sailed a boat before. All the navigation he knew he learned from books in the public library, but he built his boat, "The Islander," from drift lumber and building boards.

"Who's crazy now?" asked Pidgeon Sunday, when he passed the quarantine and tacked his small craft to the very same pier he left years ago.

The "library navigator" has ended one of the most amazing sea journeys known to sailors. In four years, he has cruised over the seven seas, has stopped at all the principal ports of the world and has a total of 40,000 miles of sea travel to his credit.

His sole guide in his travels was a small book on navigation and a small paper chart he bought for less than a dollar.

Pidgeon, the "Book Sailor," had many narrow escapes when typhoons and other storms tossed his small craft about as if it had been a piece of kindling wood. In the summer of 1924, off the South African coast near Cape Town, "The Islander" went ashore in a storm and was wrecked.

Pidgeon picked up his scattered boards and set about rebuilding his craft. In two months he had her shipshape again and was on his way.

Masters of many ships reported seeing Pidgeon on his four-year cruise. The book-savvy sailor never would accept assistance when it was proffered him on the high seas.

He was going to prove to the world that he wasn't crazy, he said Sunday.

Pidgeon expects to write a book about his experiences. He will start his journal in the near future. He is 50 years old.

Gigli Loses Role in 'Tosca'

CHAMLEE TO SING OPPOSITE VIENNA SONG BIRD

New York, November 1.—(AP)—With the raising of the first curtain tomorrow night, all of the heroes and heroines and villains of last year's backstage melodramas at the Metropolitan Opera house will have reported to the management as ready for the coming season. Certain changes in the personnel of individual casts for the season are significant, however, despite the diplomatic silence of Giuseppe Gatti-Casazza, the general manager.

When Maria Jeritza appears Wednesday evening in "Tosca," Mario Chamlee will sing the role of Scarpia, last season by Gigli, thus breaking up the former apparently close corporation of Jeritza-Gigli-Scotti.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza will make an announcement but it has not been forgotten that last season Jeritza declared she never again would sing with Gigli.

Owing to the illness of Giovanni Martinelli last season, Gigli took over the performance on January 26. The part called upon him to throw Jeritza to the floor. Instead, he hurled her into the footlights. Jeritza suffered painful injuries. The matter was declared an accident.

Fifteen days later, when they appeared together in "Tosca," something again went amiss. The audience had begun the usual cry for Jeritza to come before the curtain, but Gigli took the first call alone and apparently ill at ease. Ten minutes later, silent applause finally brought the Viennese artist out, but the audience could see somebody backstage pushing her before the curtain, and she was in tears. In broad German accents, she said: "Gigli not nice to me," and disappeared.

Lawrence Tibbett, who, after three years in minor roles and obscurity, rose suddenly to popular acclaim last season, will appear Saturday night in the first Metropolitan production of Maurice Ravel's "L'Heure Espagnole."

Other novices will bid for Tibbett's luck this season. There is Carmela Ponselle, who will join her sister, Rosa, in the company's ranks. Years ago they sang together, and then Carmela continued in vaudeville and concert work that Rosa might study for the opera. Last spring Rosa led her sister out on the Metropolitan stage and together they sang at a special concert, which won Carmela a contract with the Metropolitan.

The novice whose debut, in the latter half of the season, will be watched with perhaps the most interest is Marion Talley, the young Kansas City girl, who has been studying abroad for three years to prepare for opera work at the suggestion of Mr. Gatti-Casazza.

Other novices will bid for Tibbett's luck this season. There is Carmela Ponselle, who will join her sister, Rosa, in the company's ranks. DR. JOHN TROUTT TAKEN BY DEATH

Madison, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—Dr. John Hubert Troutt, 67, died early Sunday morning at his home at Pennington in Morgan county.

He had been in failing health for several years, his serious illness covering a period of only a month.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at 11 o'clock at Pennington and interment will be in the family burial ground at Pendergrass, in Jackson county, Monday afternoon.

Dr. Troutt was born at Jefferson and graduated from the Augusta Medical college in 1885. All of his life was spent in his home county until 1900, when he moved to Morgan county and became one of its leading citizens and most successful physicians.

In 1892 he was married to Miss Eddie Hollingsworth, who survives him, and three sons Nat, of near Atlanta; L. H. of Savannah, and Hubert, who is at home. His father, Y. G. Troutt, of Pendergrass; a sister, Mrs. E. A. Caldwell, of Monroe, and two brothers, J. R. Troutt, of Oakland, Miss., and Hoke Troutt, of Gainesville, also survive him.

Dr. Troutt was a Mason and member Yarnab temple, Atlanta, member of Madison Kiwanis club, the county board of education and Pennington Methodist church.

Arriving at the schooner's side Anderson succeeded in placing the two women and children in the boat. He was about to start the return journey when the younger Veles child demanded that two dogs, pets of herself and sister, be brought along. This accomplished, the life boat returned to the Achilles and hoisted its rescued passengers on board by means of a line. The children appeared the bravest members of the party. Anderson said, taking their plight philosophically. They did not even complain of being cold even though their little hands were numb.

His vessel tossed about by mountainous waves some 40 miles north of Hatteras Friday night, his pumps broken and his auxiliary engine stalled, Captain Veles ran up a distress signal, the ship's ensign upside down, and with his crew worked to keep the ship afloat until assistance came. Two vessels, unmindful of the plight of the distressed ship, passed within sight of the schooner yesterday morning unable to see the signal in the cloud-darkened sky.

It was 12:01 p. m. yesterday afternoon when the Achilles, a sister ship of the ill-fated Cyclops, hove into sight and began the battle against the elements to effect a rescue. It was four hours later that Captain Veles and his family and crew found themselves safely aboard the collier.

Mountainous seas which tossed the Achilles as though she were a toy, made launching of a lifeboat a difficult task and it required nearly an hour for Second Mate Anderson of the collier and his men to accomplish their purpose. Once overboard the small craft was nearly swamped on several occasions.

Captain, Family and Crew Saved From Watery Grave

TELL THRILLING STORY OF RESCUE IN HEAVY SEA

Norfolk, Va., November 1.—(AP)—Saved from a grave in the waters of the Atlantic by the timely arrival of the collier Achilles, Captain F. G. Veles, of the four-masted schooner Isabelle Parmenter, his wife, two children—girls four and five years of age—his sister-in-law, six members of his crew and two stowaways were brought here today.

His vessel tossed about by mountainous waves some 40 miles north of Hatteras Friday night, his pumps broken and his auxiliary engine stalled, Captain Veles ran up a distress signal, the ship's ensign upside down, and with his crew worked to keep the ship afloat until assistance came. Amusements

Atlanta Theater.

"No, No, Nanette," the sensational musical comedy success seen here earlier in the season, comes again to the Atlanta theater tonight, when it will begin a week's engagement with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. This sparkling Frazee musical play, has risen to such triumphant records in all the leading amusement capitals of the world, from Chicago to London; from London to Australia, and from Australia home again to New York—literally engulphing the globe—that it now ranks as the outstanding musical comedy hit of all time.

The advance sale indicates capacity audiences throughout the engagement, so that an early reservation of seats is advised.

Coming to Atlanta Theater.

"The Gorilla," which is the talk of New York, Chicago and London, where it has been attracting crowds for months past comes to the Atlanta theater on Monday night next when it will begin a week's engagement with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. It is a travesty on mystery plays and its comic detectives, Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity, are sponsors for a whirlwind of merriment. This laughable conceit by Ralph Spence, who has devised a play which provides wholesome fun for those who seek to be genuinely amused in the theater. Mail orders for the local engagement are now being received. The box office seat sale opens Thursday morning.

Loew's Grand.

The big dancing revue of the Marx Sisters and Carlon and Gus King's "Melodyland" will be two of the outstanding attractions on the new vaudeville bill which will open Monday at Loew's Grand theater. The Marx Sisters and Carlon bring a comedy dancing classic direct from a Broadway engagement. The Gus King act is presented by five talented musicians. These are four good acts in the new bill. The Loew feature picture is "Where Was I?" with Reginald Denny.

Keith's Forsyth.

Pretty Ethel Davis, late star of the Greenwich Village Follies, is offering a distinctive act of comedy, song and patter to patrons of Keith's Forsyth theater the first three days of this week. Miss Davis's act, which headlines the program, is entitled "Refreshing Song Chatter."

In addition the excellent program also includes four other acts and a Pathe news reel and an Aesop Fable.

The Metropolitan.

Returning to Atlanta on its second annual road showing "The Sea Hawk" comes to the Metropolitan for the first time at no advance in prices.

Willard Patterson said "he feels that because of its massiveness in production treatment, its irresistible appeal to men and women, young and old alike, they were forced to show the 'Sea Hawk' again." On the stage is that sensational American tenor, Morton Downey, the big feature of the Paul Whiteman orchestra. Also comedy, News and Views and the usual Leide overture complete the program.

Howard Theater.

"The Pony Express," hailed as the only real successor of "The Covered Wagon," is the offering this week at the Howard theater. It was directed by James Cruze, producer of that great epic of the west. Besides the heroic achievements of the express riders, the production vividly and authentically depicts the violent yet picturesque life of the primitive stage in which its scenes are laid. Four famous screen players are featured: Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery.

During the showing of the picture, six full-blooded Indians will appear in person on the Howard stage.

"New Brooms."

Bessie Love, Neil Hamilton, Phyllis Haver and others of an entirely adequate cast take the parts in "New Brooms," which is the feature picture on the schedule for showing at the Rialto theater this week, opening today.

"The Pacemakers" will fill another week's engagement at the Rialto, and the H. C. Witwer series of short comedies of college life was never more popular.

"New Brooms" is a comedy of the American home which will dust the cobwebs off your funny-bone.

FOURTEEN INJURED IN AUTO CRASHES

Underwood, who lives at 115 Gordon street, she furnished the license number to the police and arrest of the driver has been ordered.

L. P. Hammond Hurt. L. P. Hammond, of 33 Peachtree way, in a Dixie-Fischer sanitarium with a severe wound on the head and both knees out of joint from being thrown from his machine when it collided with another car, said to have been driven by a Dr. Caldwell, at Peachtree way and Peachtree road. Mr. Hammond's wife and 8-year-old daughter, Carolyn, escaped with minor bruises.

Mr. Hammond was thrown out of the machine and landed on the ground by the force of the collision. He had driven from Peachtree way into Peachtree road when the accident occurred. County police are investigating.

Miss Whitaker Hurt. Miss Marion H. Whitaker, of 170 Clifton road, was treated at Grady hospital Sunday night after being run down by an automobile driven by G. H. Bray, of 121 Gordon street, according to police. The accident occurred in the shadow of the police station as she was crossing Decatur street with a party of friends.

Miss Whitaker suffered a deep scalp wound and cuts on the right hand. She was dismissed from the hospital after first aid treatment. The accident was investigated by Call Officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard, but no case was made against Bray at the hospital.

In the party with Miss Whitaker were Miss C. G. Abbott, of 170 Clifton road, and Mrs. Susie Benton and Charles B. DuBois, both of 131 Clifton road. In the automobile with Bray were Mrs. G. W. Bray and Miss Thelma Bray, both of 121 Gordon street.

Have Narrow Escape. Five people narrowly escaped serious injury Sunday night in a crash between two automobiles at Highland avenue and North Jackson street, and an iron post, holding a mail box was torn down.

One of the automobiles was driven by H. Pfeiffer, 349 North Jackson street, who was going north on Jackson street and the other by J. C. Stephens, 37 E. Ashland avenue, who was going west on Houston. In an effort to avoid the accident, Stephens turned north into Jackson street and the rear end of his car whipped around striking the rear end of Pfeiffer's car. The latter was thrown against a mail box.

In the car with Pfeiffer were his sister and a little baby. In Stephens' car was Sherman Johnson, 61 Lowry street.

Call officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard investigated. No case was made.

T. A. Haley Hurt. T. A. Haley, of 41 East North avenue, was badly cut about the face and severely shaken up when his automobile crashed into a telephone post about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Haley's accident was occasioned by a coupe, driven by two unidentified negroes, striking his car and forcing it into the post. He was going north on Jackson street, he told Call Officers O. C. Howell and H. P. Sibley. Immediately after the collision the negroes abandoned their car and ran. The officers took the machine to the police station in a badly wrecked condition.

Three automobile accidents Saturday, in which six persons were injured, were reported to police Sunday.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Dale, 728 South Boulevard; Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Ward, 236 Hurt building; and two persons whose names the police did not learn. They were hurt when their cars hit the south end of the car of the safety zone on Broad street near Alabama street, according to police.

In the first accident, which occurred about 7:30 o'clock Saturday night, Dale's car was badly damaged and Mrs. Dale severely cut by flying glass and bruised. Dale had his

KIWANIS MEET TODAY AT ALBANY

Albany, Ga., November 1.—(AP)—

Albany was prepared tonight for the opening of the state convention of Kiwanis Clubs, set for tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Municipal Auditorium. Every committee reported tonight that it had completed its work.

Registration indicated that more than 700 Kiwanians and Kiwanis ladies will attend the convention and that more than 10,000 persons will be here Tuesday to see the "pecan pageant" and the "parade of the princesses."

More than $5,000 has been spent in preparation of the spectacle, which will tell in pantomime, song and story the history, development and promise of the papershell pecan, which has reached such a high state of development around this city that Albany has called itself the "world pecan center."

John H. Moss, of Milwaukee, Wis., president of Kiwanis International; W. W. Mundy, of Cedar town, Ga., and Governor Clifford Walker, of Georgia, will lead the parade of princesses. There will be floats from more than a score of Georgia cities and beautiful young women, designated as princesses, will grace the floats.

The Twenty-fourth Infantry band from Fort Benning and other musical organizations will furnish the entertainment in that line.

While the business sessions of the convention will be concluded at noon Wednesday, many of the convention visitors are expected to remain over Wednesday afternoon to see Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn, America's foremost golfers, in an exhibition match for the benefit of the Kiwanis clinic, an institution maintained by the Albany Kiwanis club for the benefit of underprivileged children of this section. A dance at Kinchfoone Country club Wednesday night will be the final entertainment offering.

EX-KLAN MEMBER OUT OF MAYORALTY RACE IN LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ky., November 1.—(AP)—

William T. Baker, democratic nominee for mayor of Louisville, withdrew from the race early today and Joseph T. O'Neal, former judge of the Kentucky court of appeals, was appointed by the chairman of the county democratic committee, in his place.

The withdrawal came after charges had been made that Mr. Baker was a member of the Ku Klux Klan. He declared in a formal statement that he had been a member, but had resigned, and that he feared his previous connection with the order would prejudice the success of other members of the democratic city ticket. He pledged his support to Mr. O'Neal in Tuesday's election.

ITALIAN COMMISSION ESCAPES ANTI-FACIST.

New York, November 1.—(AP)—Another important phase in the efforts of the United States to fund its war credits opened today with the arrival here of Count Giuseppe Volpi Di Misurata, Italian finance minister, and five members of the Italian debt mission, the liner Duilio. A selection from the state department, headed by Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, who is here from Rome on vacation, met the visitors at Quai de Commerce.

While 2,000 anti-fascist awaited near the pier, the envoys were landed secretly at the Battery and, escorted by 72 secret service men, mounted police and members of the special bomb squad, were hurried to the Pennsylvania station, where they entrained at once for Washington.

The five other members of the commission are Dino Grandi, under secretary of state for foreign affairs; Count Lelio Bonin Longoni, a senator of the realm and former ambassador to France; Drs. Alberto Pirelli and Mario Alberti, honorary ministers plenipotentiary, and Commendatore Dino Buti.

Giacome de Martino, Italian ambassador to the United States, is also a member of the commission. Count Volpi said the delegation had placed no time limit on its stay, but would remain "as long as the discussion of the debt settlement required."

which caused the formation of two mobs, the first one resulting in the storming of the Buncombe county jail in an attempt to take the negro Mansel therefrom. The sheriff, however, had anticipated this action and had rushed the negro to Charlotte for safekeeping.

Following editorial comment of The Asheville Citizen, in which demands were made on the leading negro citizens of the city to take some action to prevent further outrages, a mass meeting of negro citizens was held this afternoon, at which suggestion was made that cities should name negro police officers who would assist in the apprehension of members of their race who had committed such attacks.

They deplored, they said, the attacks, but one of these negro women urged members of their race "to quit talking so much and keep their affairs a secret."

M. B. Ward and his wife were bruised and cut in another crash about 8:45 o'clock. A light touring car, occupied by two persons whose names have not been obtained, figured in the third crash. They were both reported to have been badly cut, but left before the police arrived.

Dale and Ward declared their accidents were the result of failure to place a red light signal on the south end of the safety platform.

NEW HEART TEST METHODS HAILED AS LIFE-SAVERS

New York, November 1.—(AP)—

Demonstration of a device for the phonographic recording of heart sounds, which is expected eventually to save thousands of lives annually by making possible improved methods of diagnosing heart diseases, was given by the Columbia Phonograph company.

Engineers of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., and the Columbia Phonograph company perfected the invention with the assistance of Dr. Richard C. Cabot, professor of physiology at Harvard university medical school; Dr. H. M. Williams, professor of physiology at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York; and Dr. J. C. Gamble, of the School of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania.

APPLES TO BE GIVEN TO CITY ORPHANAGES

Beginning today with the distribution of thousands of apples among inmates of various orphanages of the city as the day's big feature, the third day of Atlanta's "Apple Week" observance gets under full momentum.

During the remaining five days of the week, ending Friday, November 6, Atlanteans are certain to hear more about apples than ever before, according to leaders in the local observance of the national week. School children this week will be given several minutes daily in talks regarding the apple as a commercial crop in this state and as regards its recognized value as a food.

In hotels, restaurants and in private homes, baked apples, apple pie, apple salads, apple marmalade and the nearly two hundred other varieties of food in which apples dominate, will be included in daily menus.

It's all in the city's program for observing "Apple Week," to acquaint the general public with the real wholesome value of the apple. Civic clubs and prominent men and women have joined hands in making the 1932 "Apple Week" the greatest ever staged here. To this end practically every known means of impressing the public has been included in the program, including sign boards, newspaper space, stickers, special cards and billboards placed in conspicuous places and many other features.

During today members of the Produce club, headed by J. L. McCord, will visit all city orphanages, for both white and colored, with bundles of apples for inmates. Homes for old men and old women will be visited as will homes for crippled and orphaned kiddies. Today will be "Apple Day" for hundreds of the more unfortunate ones.

INJURED WHEN HEAD STRIKES FRYING PAN

Edward Dorn, 17, of 321 Simpson street, was taken to Grady hospital Sunday night suffering from a deep laceration over the left eye and a first-degree burn on the left side of his neck. He was burned when he slipped on the floor of his residence, his head striking a frying pan. He was given treatment and allowed to return home.

San Francisco Society Opens Series Intime

With the opening concert of the Atlanta Music Club's series intime set for 8:30 o'clock tonight, when the San Francisco Chamber Music society plays at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium, officers of the club announced Sunday that season tickets for the series would be withdrawn from sale after today. They are available through today at the club's downtown office at Cable Piano company, 82 N. Broad street.

These tickets, admitting their holders to all concerts of the series, including the Flonzaley quartet, are made available to the general public at half the price of single performance tickets in order to enable attendance of music lovers at all entertainments at a cost small enough to prove no hardship to anyone. The first concert, to be given tonight, has aroused widespread interest throughout musical circles of the state, it was indicated in mail orders received by the club from musicians and patrons of music in other cities. Compositions by Beethoven, Ravel and Foote will be featured on tonight's program. The society includes two violins, a viola, violin and flute. The first violin was concertmaster of the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra, the only American ever to hold such a place.

MOTORMAN FINDS MANGLED BODY CHECKED SPEED

Columbia, S. C., November 1.—(AP) D. B. Hosse, 61-year-old pressman for the Columbia Record, was found dead late today under the front truck of a street car. The motorman, feeling some impediment to the progress of the car, asked a passenger who was about to get aboard to see if there was anything in front of it, and Hosse's body was found, dily mangled. Mr. Hosse, a native of Nashville, is survived by his widow and several children.

This is Victor Day

Your day to hear one of the greatest achievements in the history of music

In every city—in every state, a wonderful new instrument is being demonstrated. . . . Hear this newest and greatest invention announced by the Victor Talking Machine Company at the store of any dealer in Victor products

TODAY . . . a new instrument is being demonstrated—an instrument that will give a new meaning to the word . . . music. It will amaze and enthral millions of people everywhere; and the more critical their attitude toward music, the more astounded they will be. Be one of them.

Don't let preconceived ideas rob you of this inspiring experience. There is a fullness, a richness, a depth and magnificence of tone that is incredible. As the first notes are played, you will feel that the artist in person is before you, and that there is a nearness and intimacy that even the concert stage cannot give. Be sure you hear it, for no description is adequate.

Go to any store where Victor products are sold. The demonstration begins at nine o'clock and continues throughout the day. You will be surprised beyond measure and you will have an experience you will never forget.

If it is impossible to hear this marvelous instrument today, go tomorrow or the next day or any day from now on, at any hour. You need spare only a few minutes, and in those few minutes you will hear music such as you never believed to be within the range of possibility; and within a single minute after the first astonishing tones greet your ears, you will agree with the hundreds of great musicians who have heard it—that this is one of the most important contributions ever made to the art of music.

LIVE RIGHT TODAY.—Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Proverbs 13:12.

AWAKE TO EDUCATION.—The president by proclamation has set aside the week of November 16-21 as American Education week. It is hoped that every school in Georgia will observe the week properly, and that the necessity of education may be stressed.

The governor of Georgia has already issued a proclamation as to the celebration of the week in this state. The mayors of the larger municipalities will do the same thing. The school superintendents in every county should begin immediately organizing the programs. The fact is we should have an awakening in Georgia, not only as to the value of education—more needed now than at any time in our history—but as to Georgia's peculiar interest, and indeed need for an awakening.

This state, more than any other state in the southeast, needs to revise her general school system so that the chain between the first grade in the grammar school through the normals and the higher institutions up to and through the University, the School of Technology and the Agricultural college shall be unbroken. The state needs to equalize her educational opportunities so that no boy or girl shall be denied the privileges of standard training with maximum terms.

State Auditor Slat issued a statement Friday directing special attention to the miserly manner in which the state is providing for the Georgia School of Technology—less than any state in the union is doing for her school of technology, and less than some of the high schools are being supported on a student per capita basis. It is a shame. But it is not the only shame in Georgia's treatment of her schools. Georgia's Tech is one of the best in its class in America but hundreds knock at its doors in vain, and by the necessity for high tuition fees to keep it properly functioning, due to the state's neglect of it, the doors are closed to many poor boys with ambition and grit and merit who cannot pay the costs, even by working part of the time. Other institutions suffer in the same way.

Georgia has too many one-room shacks and too many incompetent teachers. The state is to blame. It is impossible to secure competency in school districts where it is impossible to pay less for teacher services than a house servant expects in Atlanta or Macon or Savannah or Augusta.

American Education week has become a permanent institution. It deals with problems so fundamental that it appeals to all the people and becomes more successful each year as parents and teachers understand that education touches the whole life. The educational situation in Georgia is a parent responsibility—not alone at the ballot box but before the legislature and before the bar of public opinion.

"APPLE WEEK."

Georgians should observe "national apple week" with more than passing interest—not merely because apples are a most delicious and certainly a most healthful fruit, but because the Georgia apple of commerce is unequalled by that of any other section of the country, and the apple growing industry is destined to become one of the most important horticultural activities in the state.

It is worthy of note that the Georgia apple belt, which is rapidly becoming nationally famous, as is her peach belt, is the most southern commercial apple growing area between Virginia and the equator. The Georgia apple, therefore, which has no superior in the world in beauty, taste or carrying capacity—and far exceeds in taste the famous red apples of the Columbia river territory in Oregon—is particularly advantageously located as to the Florida, Cuban, Central and South American markets.

Only within the last four or five years have the growers become properly organized to push their products, but today the Habersham-Rabun territory, and the Blue Ridge territory, are developing this industry at a phenomenal rate. Exchanges have been organized. Packing and refrigerating houses have been built. And in the meantime new groves are being set out at a most encouraging rate.

WHERE WE LOSE.

That money saved is money made is a fundamental principle in economics. Taxes can only be reduced through, first, distribution; and, second, conservation of resources.

Georgia's income is invariably inadequate to meet the pressing demands of a budget that practically starves her institutions. And yet Georgia deliberately permits several hundred thousand dollars a year go into the treasuries of other states through her own indifference to proper revisions of some of her laws that should be made, regardless of the situation as to revenue increases, in the interest of strengthening her economic position in inviting outside investment capital.

We refer specifically in this connection to the present corporation laws of the state. At present several thousands of dollars a week are sent out of Georgia to Delaware, Florida, Alabama and other states as fees in the securing of corporation charters because of the archaic laws of Georgia that are inadequate in meeting the corporation demands of the time. A proper revision of these laws do not mean the opening of any flood-gates, or the weakening of any standards of security. Those are not issues at point. They simply need revising to meet modern conditions governing the functions of corporations and in a way that no possible objection by any person could reasonably be made. And yet the legislature, urged to make these revisions—urged by the governor and by business men and lawyers and civic organizations—has refused to do so, or has been indifferent to the demand and to what it means.

On this page is a communication on the subject from Edgar Watkins, one of the leaders of the Atlanta bar, who speaks from experience, and from contact with facts as to what is annually being lost to the treasury of Georgia. The governor has estimated that we are losing a million dollars a year. Think what a million dollars can do toward equalizing and building schools and providing proper support and coordination in our state educational system! We lose it, without helping anybody. We lose it through legislative indifference.

This is a matter that deserves and demands serious thought. Before the next assembly meets public sentiment should be aroused to this and many other conservation problems that need reforming in Georgia.

RAW PRODUCT FIELD.

A geological engineer of wide reputation visited Bartow county recently to inspect some mineral deposits in that county for an eastern manufacturing concern that is thinking of moving its plant to the southeast. The investigations are now in progress.

The mere fact has suggested the advisability of the industrial bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce making a thorough raw product survey so that manufacturers may be intelligently informed of just what raw products, of every description, are in close-enough proximity to Atlanta to interest northern manufacturers in making Atlanta their new manufacturing location. One of the first definite problems a manufacturer must work out is the closeness of the raw products to be assembled at his plant, as well as the character of such products and the limitations of supply. When this problem has been satisfactorily solved then it is time enough to solve the problems of labor, location, spur-trackage, etc.

The southeast is today the nation's most resourceful field of raw products for manufacturing in many lines. Then a careful, dependable, expert survey of that situation is not merely essential but necessary.

However, "the first cold wave" isn't such a warm number.

A big north Georgia apple a day ought to keep a couple of doctors away.

It's great to have enough prosperity to make you wish and work for more.

Almost invariably something is wrong with the material used in the making of French cabinets.

An exchange says "there is no coal trust now." Well, a ton by any other name would hit as hard.

The federal income tax is always up for argument—and how it does hold its own against all comers at every showdown!

Halloween in Billville.
 During the Halloween festivities, long about midnight, as near as we can guess, our little office was moved across the railroad track while we were in it, sleeping like the dead. We had been dreaming that we had wrapped up our extra shirt and beat it to a land where the sheriff cometh not, and the bill collector is no more; and when we were awakened by breakfast bells ringing all around us, we took it for granted that a provident landslide had made our dream come true, and gave a moderate halleluia to celebrate the occasion.

The Lost Song.

 A song by the morning given
 I sang with gladness heart;
 And the strain like dreams of heaven
 Did need to me impart;
 But toils of the day were pressing
 And the hours weary, long,
 And my soul mid words distressing
 Forgot its mirth and song.

II.
 Till at last the day departed
 And came soft twilight's glow;
 And I sat alone, downhearted,
 While evening lights burned low;
 Then I heard an old friend singing
 With spirit glad and free,
 And lo! night winds were bringing
 The lost song back to me.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RISKS.
 The other evening I read an essay by George Edward Woodberry about the faith of a great American, and came across this sentence: "The willingness to take risks is one gauge of faith. Risk is a part of God's game, alike for men and nations."

My mind went back to a little company of men who followed the heroic Columbus as he sailed with those three small craft from the shores of Spain.

Commander Green, in his wonderfully thrilling story, "Our Naval Heritage," just published, opens the first chapter with this statement: "It cost Columbus $2,116 to discover America, prorated as follows:
 Equipment of fleet . . . $800.00
 Upkeep of general staff . . . 105.00
 Food and wages of crew . . . 315.00
 Arms and ammunition . . . 745.00"

I wonder how many Americans have ever faintly thought about what Columbus risked for an idea?
 I lean back in my easy chair, surrounded by books in a spot of beauty that is but a little foot-track in this great America. I close my eyes. What do I hear in mind? These words of that intrepid Italian: "Sail on, and on—and on."

Risks? But what are risks when human character sets out with an idea in its hand?
 No wonder people have their heads when they look upon Plymouth rock. A wreck isn't the saddest sight in life. The saddest sight in this world is to see a great ship at anchor, afraid to head toward a far-off port.

The sad thing is to refuse to try to do the thing you believe that you can do. To lose is not the answer to failure.
 Did the ministry and influence of Christ end with 30 odd years that the Cross terminated?
 I wonder how many know that thousands of feet blood-thirsty what is now the great middle west of America, simply because they believed that fertile lands lay beyond the possible homes for millions at that time yet unborn? A few turned back, as always the case. But a sufficient number of sturdy pioneers strode on.
 Risks? They are life's bread and butter!

Just in Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

While a guest of the Cartersville Chamber of Commerce Friday it was a privilege and pleasure, in company with Messrs Gilreath, Vaughan, Peoples and other citizens, to ride over many stretches of the Bartow county roads that radiate in various directions from the city.

I was particularly interested in the Bartow link of the Dixie highway, which, by the way, is relatively one-fourth of the entire mileage from Chattanooga to Atlanta.

In the first place the public has very probably formed the wrong impression about Bartow's road activities—and in forming that impression a lesson of real value has been emphasized.
 It is a big county. The key location it occupies gives it a number of highways—all important.

These highways cross in Cartersville at right angles, or converge there. For instance, there are two highways to Rome, and thence from Rome to Chattanooga. Then there is the division of the Dixie to Dalton and thence on to Chattanooga. There is the Cherokee trail—an east-and-west road that ought to be on the state system, and will be. And many others!

Fact is, Cartersville is a gateway to the great sections of northwest and north central Georgia, and in a measure to much of northeast Georgia.

Considering these facts in connection with the topography of Bartow county—a beautiful hill-and-valley country in which road construction is almost as difficult and as expensive as the mountains proper—it is easy to understand how wholly unwarranted condemnations as to road-building progress could be made.

The fact that at the present time there are an average of possibly 1,200 cars—a majority of them from out of the state—passing over the Dixie highway through Cartersville daily gives rise to the thought that one stretch of a mile or two of bad road, with sharp curves and dangerous crossings, may make at least some of these various motorists lose sight of the scores of miles of really good—indeed excellent—chert roads that the county has recently built on its main lines.

Thereby hangs the tale—and the explanation.

Bartow county has not floated any bonds for highway work. It has issued script, thereby carrying a floating indebtedness.

I think it has made a mistake in its financial plan in that respect. It can be remedied with a bond issue, and I believe will be.

But it cannot be said that Bartow has been, or is now, slow or indifferent to road-building. It has done as much road-construction work of a permanent nature during the past year or eighteen months as almost any county in the state—far more than some that have capitalized reputations for road enterprise.

Now let's see about it. In the city of Cartersville, which covers considerable area, the paving contracts completed and let will approximate five miles of asphalt.

These streets are city links in the cross-street and cross-county highways.

North of Cartersville, on the Dixie, a magnificent standard chert highway has been about completed to the county line—which is some considerable distance. It has been made permanent, complying with federal regulations, and the hard surface will go on when properly "settled."

The other highways to the north and west have been similarly built—all standard, and with chert surfaces today that make them excellent in all weathers.

They will be included in the permanent paving program.

Where has the complaint arisen? In the Dixie link south of Cartersville to the Cobb line!

This road was built two or three years before the state highway department was created under the existing law and system.

It was built entirely by Bartow county, through the Allatona hills—"mountains" they call them and not without reason—and took the place of an old road, abandoned now, that one cannot look at at present without giving the county credit for having made a tremendous—almost marvelous—improvement at the time.

It is crooked, because it winds around the hills, which route cut out much filling and grading at the time. It has some dangerous surface crossings on it.

This is the road—a part of the Dixie—that has brought much unjust criticism to Bartow because it was made without giving due thought to what it supplanted, or to the other magnificent road developments to the north, or to the enormous road mileage in the county, or the costs that are peculiarly high by reason of the choppy topography.

This stretch of road that the state highway department says is now not generally fitted to hard surface, by reason of which it has suggested and made a new survey that will cut out two of the crossings, and many of the dangerous curves and bad grades.

Knowing the people of Bartow as I do—and there is not a county in Georgia with greater national resources or better and more progressive people—I am confident a bond issue will soon be passed that will retire the county's outstanding road scrip—which is entirely feasible—and that, with but little more carrying expense than at present, the county may be financially equipped to build to a standard and surface the new link south of Cartersville—retaining the present road for a relief to the traffic congestion, and for good and far-reaching local uses and service. And at the same time hard-surface the present magnificent standard

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Emil VanderVelde.
 One of the dominant figures at the recent Locarno conference was Emil VanderVelde, who holds at present the position of Belgian foreign minister and who was minister of justice during the greater part of the war. M. VanderVelde, whose name reveals his Flemish origin, is one of the most distinguished jurists of the European continent. He is not only an active member of the social-democratic party in his own country, but commands with Karl Kautsky a leading position in the councils of the Amsterdam and Second International of Labor. Of a scholarly turn of mind, M. VanderVelde is of a retiring nature. He is the author of a score of works dealing with economic and judicial matters. He became the center of interest in international politics in a most dramatic way two years ago when he volunteered his services to defend the social-revolutionaries in Russia, who were on trial before the cheka in Moscow. He actually went there, though counseled from all sides that he would be imprisoned. But he was neither thrown in jail, nor was he prevented from delivering a most scathing denunciation of the communist program and its treatment of other revolutionary groups. M. VanderVelde, though a socialist, is a staunch personal friend of King Albert. The friendship dates from the years they spent as exiles on French soil during the war.

In the trenches M. VanderVelde was not only a familiar figure to the soldiers stationed at the Yser, but the slightly-stopped figure with the dark-brimmed hat and pipe, muffled by a regular trip through the front lines and who was a welcome visitor because of his unassuming good nature and his disposition in days of national gloom.

Damascus.
 The capital of Syria has practically in ruins after a 48-hour bombardment from the sky by the representatives of the protecting and mandatory power, the French republic. From an insignificant inland revolt, that of the Jebel-Druze tribe, the rebellion against the French has spread to the country is a seething mass of armed resistance from the hills of Lebanon to Aleppo. The British in Jerusalem are not only interested spectators, but they have already launched an emphatic protest against the bombardment because no warning was given in advance of the attack on the city. The Arab hinterland in the meantime is stirring with new life. Irregular bands of guerrillas from all over are riding to the aid of the Arabs in Syria, who have driven the French to such an act of desperation as the destruction of the capital city. One can hardly credit the news dispatches which tell of the French practice of displaying the heads of slain Arab warriors on the walls of Damascus.

But when it is considered that the campaign so far has been one of singular savagery, in which the French massacred every single French soldier of the inland citadels and blockhouses, it becomes clear that the Syrian people are facing a disaster without a friend in sight. For neither Turkey, nor the Hedjaz, nor the independent Arab, nor in fact any of the nations has been looking with favor on the French occupation of Syria.

The English Clergy.
 The lord archbishop of Canterbury has leveled some mordant criticism at the preaching of the clergy, blaming the poor quality of the sermons for the decline in church attendance. Yet there is another side to the question. In the year 1924, a single sermons were preached in the city of London, actually facing a disaster without a friend in sight. For neither Turkey, nor the Hedjaz, nor the independent Arab, nor in fact any of the nations has been looking with favor on the French occupation of Syria.

Some time ago some tacks were reported in the road in Bartow—and some tires punctured. Bad business. But it was traced to one irresponsible but mischievous person. It has not occurred since.

Such things are occurring all over the United States every day—and in most cases infinitely more serious.

At Emerson, a little municipality south of Cartersville, in Bartow, reports of incessant activity in arresting motorists for exceeding the speed limit were published.

There were some reasons for complaint, but less than the public was led to believe, considering the hundreds of cars passing there daily and some undoubtedly at dangerous rates of speed. At any rate the matter was quickly adjusted.

Just one word in conclusion—and I did not intend writing at such length—
 There is an awakening all over Georgia. Look at Muscogee county! Over a million dollars' bonding for 70 miles of hard-surface roads.

Comparison has impelled action. Georgia cannot lag behind when her own economic welfare is at stake. She will not.

Let us turn to North Carolina again—the most serene and detached of the sisterhood of states has become a gadfly to the states that lag—a beacon light to those that aspire. Georgia aspires. The struggle upward is worth the cost, but without the cost it would be futile.

Falsified Photos.
 Under the caption, "Rozenbroene Niemy," which means "German Disarmed," the Polish paper, Słowo Polskie of Warsaw, publishes a blurred photograph of an immense cannon being served by a group of artillerymen, while some officers are looking on from a distance. The Polish public is to get the impression from this picture that the Germans are only disarming in name, while actually continuing their preparations for a war of revenge in the near future.

The photograph would indeed be a weighty piece of evidence in the paper's contention but for one reason—there is no such picture. The same gun, the same gun and the same group of soldiers, but not blurred, with every detail showing clearly is reproduced in the Parisien, a French journal published in Paris. In this paper the picture is labeled, "A Scene From the French Front in Morocco." One can see plainly the French uniforms and the French automobiles with staff officers observing the manipulation of the big gun. It seems that the campaign in the east against Germany, a relic of wartime propaganda, of which the recently exposed copper-nitroglycerine yarn was a sample, is still going on as far as Poland is concerned.

W. ROY CANNON, ALUMNUS OF TECH, DIES IN CHICAGO.
 News of the death of W. Roy Cannon, 24, of Atlanta, in Chicago Friday was received by friends here Sunday. Mr. Cannon was traveling representative of the Economic Service corporation and died soon after becoming ill in Chicago.

He was born in Sylvester and came to Atlanta two years ago. He was an alumnus of Gordon Institute and Georgia School of Technology. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cannon, of Sylvester, and two brothers. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

THE SHENANDOAH (Daughter of the Stars)
 Fish, like a shadow in the night,
 Her engines throbbing in the sky,
 Outlined against the moon's bright light,
 They hid by clouds that drifting by.

Betoken of the storm to come;
 The forces of Old Nature's war:
 The lightning flash, the angry hum
 Of winds, the mighty thunder's roar.

Still on she travels in the sky,
 Her courage strong; her soul not bound
 By thoughts of fear that men may die,
 To sleep beneath a hero's mound.

Her nose splits onward through the clouds;
 The lightning flashes o'er her prow;
 Looms bright the silken bag that shrouds
 The hidden limits of her power.

Swift as a meteor through the dark,
 The waves passing to and fro,
 Tossed on, she bravely stands her mark,
 And shivers as the storm-winds blow.

Yet comes a time when waves opposed,
 Meet, twist her glistering bulk asunder;
 The storm her mighty life has closed,
 Taps o'er her grave the rolling thunder.

Her mighty triumph now has passed,
 She'll sail the airy seas no more;
 But alien soil shall rest at last—
 Still great in death—the Shenandoah.

No more a hand shall guide her on;
 No more she'll sail in stately splendor;
 The pilots of her bulk have gone
 Where men to hero tribute render.

Yet 'neath the stars her soul shall sail,
 If not herself that sweeps the air;
 Her spirit shall face the gale,
 And beat the stormy winds on high.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, November 1.—More than forty producers are clamoring for a theater on Broadway as the season moves to its fullness. Just as soon as a weak play topples over, a new production takes its place, while another new-comer joins the waiting ranks at the tail-end of the long queue. The average life of a play is one month and in this reckoning such long runs as "Able, My Brother," "Zat So" and "Desire Under the Elms" have already added their lengthening influence to strike that average.

Metropolitan Movies. A gent with a monocle, malacca cane and spats on Second avenue. . . . A pair of engrossed lovers on a park bench in the chill morning air at 6 a. m., totally oblivious that the night is over. . . . Mannish-looking Amazon of Slavic type, big cheekbones, wide-apart eyes, dragon gait selecting extremely luxurious intimate garment of delicate green color at department store counter. . . . A priest, out with a bunch of boy scouts in Central park, kicking a football. . . . The high-pitched music of a quarrel between a Jewish matron on Hester street and an Italian fruit peddler.

The origin of the peg-leg dance, staged every night to the great delight of Knickerbocker theater patrons, was concocted by Cecil Hemmer, the Viennese dance director. Her Hemmer was once engaged by the late Mrs. Stuyvesant-Fish to supervise and direct her private balls and cotillions. While standing in the drawing room examining a painting of old Peter Stuyvesant, the genial Dutch governor of New York, who had a wooden leg, Herr Hemmer noticed Mrs. Stuyvesant standing behind him. When he turned around she asked him if he intended to stage a peg-leg dance. Not until years later did Hemmer carry out the idea.

In connection with peg-legs and the stumbling, winking noise they can make, I think ex-Premier MacDonald of England once coined a very apt description in talking about the deafening noise made by his opponents.

Georgia Loses Vast Sums Yearly
 By Inadequate Corporation Laws

BY EDGAR WATKINS.
 Editor Constitution: Georgians have an opportunity to save an amount, which Governor Walker estimates at approximately a million annually, by amending the Georgia corporation laws largely are copied from the English common law and are inadequate to meet the needs of business at this time. We have our own cooperative marketing corporations through which our agricultural and horticultural producers market, to their advantage, their respective commodities. Many educational institutions and labor organizations use the corporate form. In order to get to the heart of the matter, a committee of the Georgia corporation laws is needed in the development of the many natural resources of our state, the corporate form must be used. This makes it a case of corporate law, there shall be simple, easily understood, definite laws by which corporations may be created. Georgia's laws do not meet the demand for this.

Delaware, Florida and other states have recognized the advantages of the situation just sketched and have passed adequate corporation laws. The Georgia corporation laws, as now written in Delaware, and recently in Florida. Moderate charges are made by these states for issuing charters, annual payments of moderate sums are required. These charges and payments have met the state taxes of Delaware; and Georgia contributes largely thereto.

Last June Florida amended her laws and, because of the proximity of Florida to Georgia, lawyers are now using the corporate laws of Florida for incorporating Georgia businesses. For each of these corporations a minimum of $50 is charged; and an annual fee of $10 is required.

Why should Georgia not only retain such charges and fees for her corporations but get such charges and fees from other states? Why continue to lag behind in this respect?

If Georgia had adequate corporation laws, many Georgia businesses would be incorporated in Georgia, but states other than Georgia would come to Georgia for the corporate charters, though which their businesses would operate.

Why does Georgia not do this? It is difficult to find any reason for this. The Georgia legislature has met this situation. A bill was drawn, providing means by which proper corporate laws could be obtained for Georgia, and introduced by the City club. Copies of this bill were sent to the governor, the speaker of the house, the president of the senate and the representatives from Fulton county and from the senatorial district in which Fulton county is located. The speaker of the house approved the bill and referred it to the judiciary committee. The president of the senate introduced a similar bill in the senate. The representatives from Fulton county and the senatorial district made no reply to the letters inclosing the bill.

In so far as "non-par" stock is concerned, the legislature has passed a bill, but the general situation was not fully remedied.

Why does Georgia send her money to other states and deprive her treasury of money that might come to it from other states when she can retain this money in Georgia and get money from other states by passing a just, fair and adequate corporation law?

It took five or six years to get the Georgia legislature to agree to the issuance of "non-par" stock. This kind of stock is a honest stock. Instead of saying that a share is worth $100, or any other fixed sum, it merely states that the holder of the share has an undivided interest in the property of the corporation. Par value stock frequently is worth more or less than par value. In some cases it does not correctly represent what the face of the stock indicates. To prevent this and to protect sub-

Searchers Recover Body of Hunter From Mississippi

Memphis, Tenn., November 1.—(AP) Searchers today recovered the body of John C. McLemore, Jr., 28, a deputy county clerk, who drowned in the Mississippi river 12 miles above Memphis, last night while on a duck-hunting trip. Two companions of McLemore were successful in their attempts to reach the shore after their boat capsized.

Young McLemore was a son of John C. McLemore, Shelby county court clerk, and a son-in-law of J. Ed Richards, criminal court judge. His death occurred on the eve of the first day of the duck season.

Germans Prefer Fat Wives SLENDER FORM OF STYLE SHUNNED BY TEUTONS In Public Marriage Marts

BY ERIC KEYSER.

Berlin, November 1.—Buxom ladies are most in demand in the German marriage market.

A perusal of matrimonial want ads, of which there are a host in every edition of German newspapers, shows that slender women, such as the American type of today, make no hit with German men.

Desires as to the prospective bride's figure are frequently specified. In every case, straight lines are frowned upon.

Buxom blondes are wanted most. If any deviation from this ideal is noticeable, it applies only to color of the hair. The figure must be at least "full-slender"—a literal translation, approximated best by the English "plump."

Many advertisers consider "full-slender" a dangerous definition. Too much stress might be laid on the second part of the compound—a terrible thing to contemplate! These cautious men use the word "corpulent" in describing their ideal of a life-mate.

An advertiser in the "Deutsche," a reputable family-and-fireside paper, even thought "corpulent" not succinct enough and advertised for a "mighty corpulent lady."

Not all male candidates for matrimony are out for beauty and ideals. "Seek marriage with lady of means."

Apply XYZ." This short and snappy announcement also appears frequently in the columns of matrimonial want ads.

Altogether, frankness is the outstanding feature of the ads of these materialists, although few of them speak as plainly as the man who announced in the Berliner Morgenpost, "I want to marry a well-to-do woman in order to enlarge my prosperous horizon."

Even imperfections in the beauty of the future bride are taken into the bargain by these materialists, if money is copious. Such an ad as "marry forthwith nice wealthy lady, slight physical shortcomings do not matter. Apply Box C. F. 5621," is nothing out of the ordinary.

More unusual is an advertisement which appeared in the Berliner Lokal Anzeiger the other day. There a young candidate for matrimony wanted to get acquainted—with a view to marrying—"a lady suffering from some impediment of speech." No hint explained this peculiar desire.

The majority of young men thus looking for a life-mate by way of advertising describe themselves as veritable "sheiks." Others, mainly the more mature, are aware of their shortcomings and emphasize their earthly possessions rather than their earthly good looks.

Wales Forsakes Ukelele for New Native Instrument

London, November 1.—The Prince of Wales has forsaken his old love, the ukelele, for the bandoleon which he brought back with him from South America.

This instrument is used in the tango bands which are now the rage in London. It is like an orchestra, but is possessed of a sweet, mellow tone.

It is a difficult instrument to play, but Wales is taking daily lessons from the bandoleonist of a London orchestra.

Dr. Dempsey Preaches At Farewell Service For Nellie Dodd Church

Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, former pastor of Nellie Dodd Memorial Methodist church, delivered the sermon Sunday morning when a farewell service was held, the last service in the old church. The new building is being constructed in front of the old one and will be ready for use in about six weeks, it is announced by W. J. Hearn, the contractor.

Tribute was paid to the congregation for the progress in their building plans. Dr. Dempsey's text was, "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord," Psalms 122:1. "This is a personal testimony of one's right relationship to God," he said.

"It is a personal testimony of the gladness that accompanies one's entering the place of prayer and worship. This is also a mark of the Christian. One who is sustaining a right relationship to God has it as a high privilege to radiate gladness, cheer and spiritual good health to those with whom he comes in contact. The Christian's place in the world is one of usefulness, service and one that brings joy to the heart of the fellowman whom he serves."

"It is a personal testimony of that gladness which comes from having a place into which one may enter, recognizing it as a holy place and dedicated to the glory of God." The speaker also called attention to the high honor one may enjoy in having a part in the building of a house of worship.

One of the features of the service was the use of a hymn which Dr. Dempsey composed several years ago for a similar occasion. The service was well attended.

MILLEDGEVILLE ELKS PLAN ACTIVE WINTER

Milledgeville, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—Milledgeville lodge of Elks is planning for one of the most active winters of any Elks' lodge in the state.

Meetings were discontinued during the summer, but the first fall meeting will be held Tuesday night in the Elks' building here and regular meetings will be held from now on.

Alderman John Hutchinson is exalted ruler, and J. A. Horne, secretary.

FARMERS OF SUMTER ARE KILLING HOGS

Americus, Ga., November 1.—(Special.)—With a small hog crop produced in Sumter county this season and corn and other feedstuffs anything but abundant, farmers about Americus are taking advantage of existing weather conditions to kill hogs and lay in their meat supply.

As a result of these conditions, city residents are enjoying their first chittering and backbone feasts.

Hogs sufficient to supply all farm needs have been produced, it is stated; but because of reduced corn and velvet bean yields, it is probable the total sales of hogs here this season will be considerably under those of previous years.

H. A. Clift, county farm demonstration agent, will open the cooperative sales season on November 16 with a sale at the Americus pens, it is announced, when it is expected there will be about two cars of hogs sold.

Is Rheumatism Keeping You From A Better Job?

Rheumatism Is a Costly Ailment, It Cuts Your Wages—Causes Unnecessary Pain and Trouble and Gets Worse as You Grow Older.

You can't work at your best when you have rheumatism. It always robs you of the better pay that your real ability deserves. Rheumatism means that your blood is poisoned with dangerous acids and waste matter that it cannot get rid of as it should. These poisons keep on circulating through your blood and make you feel tired most of the time, lacking in interest and enthusiasm. They make work that should be easy and pleasant seem hard and disagreeable.

Rheumatic aches and pains, too, distract your mind. They keep you from thinking properly. And every task takes longer and is not done so well as you otherwise would do it. After a time rheumatism cripples your muscles and finally makes all work impossible.

Don't endure this painful, expensive disease any longer. Six cents a day—for only a short while—will end it. That's all Taylor's Blood Medicine costs.

Hundreds of men and women all over the south have testified that Taylor's Blood Medicine saved them completely from rheumatism and thereby vastly increased their ability to work and make money. As an example, Mr. Arthur D. Lynn, of Tampa, Florida, took Taylor's Blood Medicine ten years ago. "It stopped my rheumatism," he writes, "and I haven't had a touch of it since. I believe Taylor's Blood Medicine is the greatest remedy on earth."

Taylor's Blood Medicine is the most amazing remedy ever made for rheumatism, stomach trouble, kidney disease and the other ailments caused by impure blood. The reason is that Taylor's Blood Medicine is a perfect blood purifier. It destroys the acids that cause the disease and at the same time acts as a tonic to the stomach and vital organs. It stimulates your whole body to vigorous healthy activity.

Get a bottle of Taylor's Blood Medicine today. If it doesn't tone up your system and give you back your strength, your druggist will return your money. It is absolutely guaranteed by your own druggist.

New Letters of Page Reveal Colorful Details of House Peace Trip To Europe in 1916

Late Ambassador Objected to Plan for U. S. To Enter War If Germany Rejected Conference.

Washington, November 1.—(AP)—Another posthumous contribution to the history of the world war, revealing colorful details of Colonel House's mysterious trip to Europe in 1916, is contained in a newly-published volume of "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page," war-time American ambassador to London.

Hendrick and published under copyright by Doubleday, Page and company, disclosed that Page objected strenuously to House's proposal that the United States should suggest a peace conference on condition that, if Germany refused the proposal, the United States would go into the war on the side of the allies.

Grounds To Enter War. Page thought there were ample moral grounds for an American declaration of war against Germany but he felt that to go in on the basis of the House proposal would amount to trickery.

The message brought to London by House, as the emissary of President Wilson, more than a year before the United States actually did go to war.

was quoted by Page in one of his memoranda as follows: "The United States would like Great Britain to do whatever would help the United States to aid the allies."

That was in January, 1916. Five weeks later, after visiting the French, Belgian and German capitals, the colonel returned to London with his plan for an American peace conference proposal with a virtual ultimatum to Germany attached.

No Confidence in President. "Of course, as I told House," wrote Page in February, 1916, "nobody here would dare talk about peace, and if they did dare, nobody would dare accept the president's 'intervention.' They no longer have confidence in the president."

House told me that we'd have a meeting on Monday—Asquith, Grey, Reading, Lloyd George, he and I. No, we won't. No member of the government can afford to discuss any such subject."

Despite the ambassador's refusal to be present, however, the meeting between House and the ranking British statesmen was held a few days later.

Foreign Minister Grey is quoted as saying to House that "If it were known that we were meeting for the purpose of discussing peace, every window in my house would be smashed," while Page himself said to the colonel: "half-seriously, half-goodnaturedly."

"If the British public learns that this is going on, you will be lucky if you are not thrown into the Thames."

Grey Indorsed Plan. Mr. Hendrick adds that, although nothing came of the plan, Grey definitely indorsed it and the others present at the meeting seemed generally favorable.

The text of the Wilson-House plan recently was made public by Viscount Grey in his memoirs, with the observation that when this text was submitted to President Wilson, he approved it with a single change.

This change, Mr. Hendrick declared, was insertion of the word "probably," which weakened the force of the proposal at a time subsequent to its presentation by House in London. As amended by the president, the opening paragraph said:

"President Wilson was ready, on hearing from France and England, to propose that a conference should be summoned to put an end to the war. Should the allies accept this proposal, and should Germany refuse it, the United States would probably enter the war against Germany."

WALES DENOUNCES MODERN WOMAN WHILE ON TOUR

Johannesburg, South Africa, November 1.—The Prince of Wales has ruled against modern, cropped femininity in favor of less mannish women.

He confided his secret judgment to a woman, and the secret has met the usual fate after circulating confidentially in South African society since the prince departed for South America.

A prominent woman asked the prince what he thought of the modern girl.

"If you mean," Wales replied, "the close-cropped, cigarette-smoking, mannish dressed, noisy girl one frequently sees in all countries, then I must confess that the modern girl does not appeal to me in the slightest."

The foregoing probably is an inverse specification of what the future princess of Wales must be. Figure it out yourself.

Cheraw, S. C., November 1.—(AP)—Two were killed and one seriously injured when Seaboard Air Line train No. 4 struck an automobile at a crossing 17 miles south of here, near Mendenhall late today.

The dead are: Raymond and Daisy Wilson, of Jennett, Pa.; Lewis Helzel, also of Jennett, was seriously injured. Helzel and the bodies of the two dead were taken to Hamlet, N. C.

OLD-FASHIONED LOVE UNCHANGED, AUTHOR BELIEVES

London, November 1.—Love-making has survived the new feminism unchanged, according to Arnold Bennett, the novelist.

In an article on the subject, Bennett says that the looks and habits of the modern girl have changed, but that the business of love-making goes on as usual.

"Nothing has changed except the words," opines Bennett, "and what they have lost in positiveness, they have more than gained in convincingness."

NEW RECORD MADE FOR PRODUCTION OF SOFT COAL

Washington, November 1.—(AP)—A new seasonal record for soft coal production was established during the week ending October 24, government observers announced tonight, and the output during the first two days of the week ending October 31 was running at an even higher rate.

The total for the seven days ending October 24 was 12,004,000 tons and the indicated production for the week of October 31 was nearly 13,000,000 tons.

Anthracite production, due to the cessation of work by the miners, was placed at only 13,000 tons.

Nearly all the soft coal fields were reported to be producing at their highest volume, while the West Virginia area, from which come a large proportion of coals considered suitable as substitutes for anthracite in household heating, was found to be exceeding all previous records, with nearly 3,000,000 tons a week throughout October.

POLITICS MAKE BETTER WOMEN, ASTOR DECLARES

Nuneaton, England, November 1.—Political activity makes women better wives by taking their minds off clothes and cat's gossip, Viscount Astor said in a speech here.

"I ought to know," he added. Viscount Astor is the husband of Lady Astor, America member of the British parliament.

"Many men do not want their wives to take part in politics," Lord Astor continued.

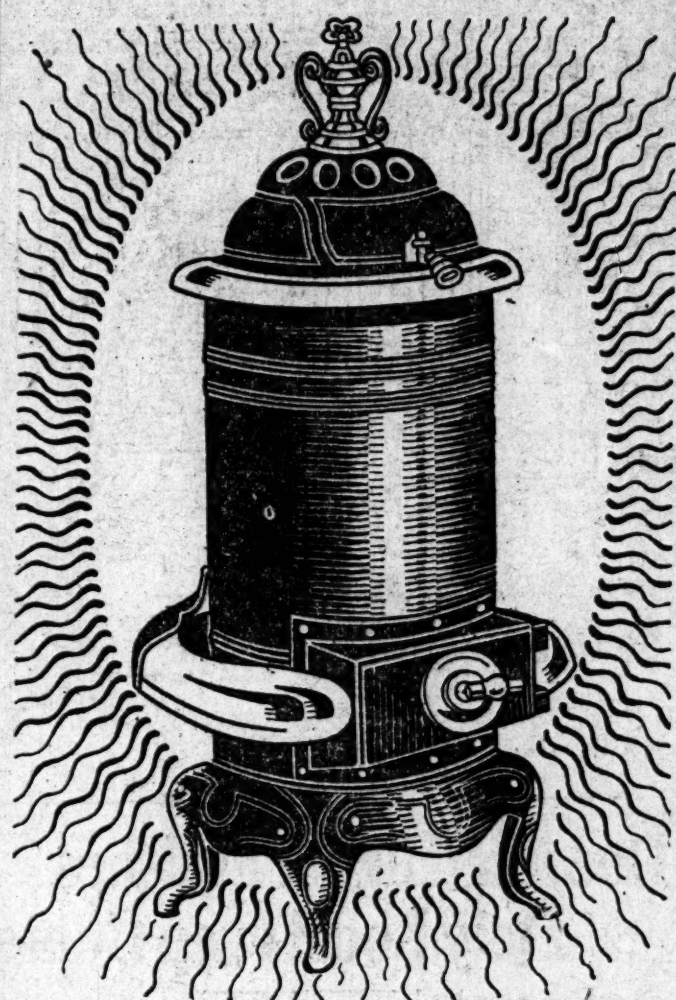

"I have seen more homes wrecked through women concentrating on clothes or gossip than through taking an active part in politics."

"I believe the better woman, the better home-maker, is the woman who takes an interest in her home and in politics."

"Fear not, brother husbands. Do what you can to make your women take an interest in public affairs."

Atlanta Offers Feast of Music On Monday's Social Program

Monday ushers in a feast day of music for Atlanta in beautiful concerts, patriotic selections and artistic arrangements of many varieties of music pertaining to this cultural art.

The United States Navy band will appear both afternoon and evening, thus giving all music lovers an opportunity of hearing this official band, and also to attend the outstanding engagement of the Chamber Music Society of San Francisco Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium, sponsored by the Atlanta Music Study club, with Mrs. Clifford Hatcher as president.

Call for Reservations.
Those having already engaged box seats for the United States Navy Band concert for this afternoon and evening and have not received their coupons, will please call at Cable 210 and company this morning and receive reservations. Other seats will also be on sale at the same place for the different prices. The concert will be at the city auditorium.

One of the most attractive features of the entertainment aside from the remarkable numbers rendered by the navy band, will be the assembling on the stage of five college bands of this community, together with Fort McPherson band, all playing in unison with the navy band under the leadership of Lieutenant Charles Benter.

Music lovers of Atlanta will enjoy a feast of this delightful art today since the artists are appearing in concert, sponsored by the Music club. For those desiring to patronize each concert and take the opportunity of hearing different kinds of music, the navy band will appear in matinee as well as evening and a great many of the music lovers are making reservations for the matinee.

Ishtar in "The Land of No Return"

One of the myths told in Babylonian was about the beautiful goddess, Ishtar. This goddess was supposed to be the daughter of Sin, the moon-god. The priests said that she made the crops grow. For these ancient people, it was hard to understand why there should be changes in seasons. Not knowing about "the tilt of the earth's axis" and the trip the earth makes around the sun, they invented a story to explain the coming of winter.

At one time, 'twas said, the goddess Ishtar went down to "the land of no return." That was where the dead were said to rest.

Ishtar came to the gate of the dark place, and cried, "Open thy gate! If you do not open, I will break the door!"

"Wait, oh lady!" called back the gate-keeper, "I shall tell thy name to the queen."

Going to the queen, he said: "Thy sister, Ishtar, is here!" "What has stirred her liver?" asked the queen. "Does she wish to live with me and eat clay for food? Go and open the gate for her."

Ishtar was permitted to enter the gloomy place, but her crown, her necklace, and her earrings were taken away. When she met her sister, there was an angry quarrel and the queen ordered disease demons to enter the body of the goddess.

Meanwhile, the gods in heaven learned of what had happened, and there was great sorrow among them. The earth did not bear fruit, and the flocks did not have grass upon which to graze. The sun-god went to Sin, his father, weeping. Then he went to the great god, Ea, and said:

"Ishtar has gone down into the earth and has not come up."

Two Babylonian women facing the image of a goddess. In this picture the goddess hardly looks "beautiful."

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Religion of the Indians

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

THE RELIGION OF THE INDIANS WAS A SIMPLE BELIEF IN A "GREAT SPIRIT" WHO CONTROLLED THE SUN AND MOON, THE RAIN, WIND, SNOW ETC. THEY ALSO BELIEVED IN GOOD AND EVIL SPIRITS.

225 Musicians Will Appear Tonight at Navy Concert

Two hundred and twenty-five talented musicians—the largest band ever gathered under one roof in Atlanta—will take part in the United States Navy band concert at the city auditorium at 8:15 o'clock tonight. These bands represent the 122nd Regiment, Fort McPherson; Tech High school, Georgia Military academy, and Oglethorpe.

There will be two performances—a matinee at 3 o'clock, at which solo will be rendered by Bandmasters Jean Mangano, baritone, and J. W. Bell, piccolo; and a night performance featuring by solos by Bandmaster G. D. Giorgio, cornet, and a duet by Bandmasters J. Bell and C. Brendler, flute and clarinet.

Children from city orphanages, patients from the city hospital, and inmates from the old soldiers' home and the home for old women, have been invited to attend the matinee. A section of the gallery has been reserved for negroes. Proceeds of this entertainment will go to charity.

The visit of the United States Navy band, which is the president's own band, is sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's club and the Atlanta Lens club.

2 STABBING VICTIMS TREATED AT GRADY

W. T. Cline, 34, who told Grady hospital attendants that he lived on Formwalt street, was taken to Grady hospital Sunday after being stabbed in the side and in the face. Cline did not tell the doctors who cut him. He will be held by the police pending an investigation, it is stated.

Sergeant Howard, 27, of 67 Fair street, was stabbed in the right arm and in the shoulder Sunday night. He was rushed to Grady hospital and several stitches were taken. No case was made and he was allowed to go home. He didn't tell who cut him.

HUNTSVILLE BANKS ARE CONSOLIDATED

Huntsville, Ala., November 1.—(Special).—The Farmers' State Bank and the Huntsville State Bank, which were merged with the Tennessee Valley Bank and become one of that company's chain of banks Monday.

The stockholders of the Tennessee Valley Bank met in Decatur Thursday and ratified the action of the officers and directors in assuming the business of the Farmers' State Bank, which was tentatively arranged several weeks ago, and the shareholders of the Farmers' State Bank met here Friday afternoon and ratified the sale.

President Clyde Hendrix, of the Tennessee Valley Bank, is here arranging to take over the business Monday and it is announced that there will be some changes in the management of the local institution. Thomas T. Terry, prominent merchant, is president of the Farmers' State Bank, which is the youngest among Huntsville banking institutions.

COLLEGE DELEGATES FAVOR WORLD COURT

Durham, N. C., November 1.—(AP).—Representatives of virtually every college in North Carolina, at a conference at Duke university, expressed their sentiment favoring the establishment of a world court.

They added their names to a petition that American college students are to send to the United States senate, in which that body is asked to ratify the international court plan.

The conference was attended by several score students, representing the various North Carolina colleges.

Tributes Paid John J. Eagan At Sunday School Dedication

Impressive dedicatory services were held Sunday morning at the Central Presbyterian church when the new five-story Sunday school building was dedicated. Large congregations attended services at Sunday school and church. Dr. Ben R. Lacy, Jr., pastor delivered the dedicatory sermon at the church service and J. E. Kirk, superintendent of the Sunday school, addressed the children of the Sunday school in the main church auditorium.

Following the church services the "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me," the inscription on the corner of the building which was dedicated by the late Mrs. Mary V. Eagan in memory of her son, the late John J. Eagan, Atlanta capitalist, who for nearly 25 years was superintendent of the Sunday school.

Dr. Lacy's Tribute.

High tribute was paid the work of both Mr. Eagan and his mother. Dr. Lacy in his sermon. He made a special plea that the new building be used for bringing children and young folks to the church, for which use it was given, he said.

Dr. Lacy also paid tribute to J. Bulow Campbell, one of the church who donated the lot, valued at $23,000, on which the building was erected. Mr. Campbell gave the lot in memory of his mother, the late Mrs. Sarah Orme Campbell.

Officers and teachers of the Sunday school were seated together and Dr. Lacy asked them to remember the purpose of the building.

Pays Tribute to Eagan.

In Mr. Kirk's address to the Sunday school he reviewed the record of Mr. Eagan while he was superintendent. He paid high tribute to his work and the work of his mother in building up the Sunday school.

Following the church services the new building was opened for inspection. Mrs. Eagan gave $100,000 for the erection of the new building which is a modern thoroughgoing building in capacity of the Sunday school and is built for departmental work. First services will be held next Sunday. Marion M. Jackson was chairman of the building committee.

Pays Tribute to Eagan.

In Mr. Kirk's address to the Sunday school he reviewed the record of Mr. Eagan while he was superintendent. He paid high tribute to his work and the work of his mother in building up the Sunday school.

Following the church services the new building was opened for inspection. Mrs. Eagan gave $100,000 for the erection of the new building which is a modern thoroughgoing building in capacity of the Sunday school and is built for departmental work. First services will be held next Sunday. Marion M. Jackson was chairman of the building committee.

Dr. Lacy also paid tribute to J. Bulow Campbell, one of the church who donated the lot, valued at $23,000, on which the building was erected. Mr. Campbell gave the lot in memory of his mother, the late Mrs. Sarah Orme Campbell.

Officers and teachers of the Sunday school were seated together and Dr. Lacy asked them to remember the purpose of the building.

THE GUMPS—THE GREAT DETECTIVE

JOANNA

BY H. L. GATES

JOANNA, a modern shop girl, paragon of the age, is summoned to the office of Graydon, owner of the department store where she is employed, and given a letter which informs her that $1,000,000 has been deposited to her account in Eggleston's bank by a benefactor who provides that his name be revealed to her. No conditions are attached to the gift, and Joanna is told that she may do with the money as she wishes. Neither Eggleston, who is a great benefactor, nor Graydon, will advise her. Joanna meets Brandon, a nephew of Eggleston. He exerts a strange influence over her and she at times is afraid of him. He becomes devoted to her. She knows instinctively that Brandon is setting a trap of some kind for her. Joanna is thus derelict when she meets the suspicious of all her own crowd, the other shop girls and her friends, who will not believe that she actually received a fortune from an unknown man. Desperately she turns to John, her school-boy sweetheart, who is also poor, and studying to be an architect. John also is suspicious and immediately her, accusing her of having fallen to the level of her too short skirts, her "faded" hair and "clarette." Broken-hearted by John's unjust suspicions Joanna tries valiantly to glean from Graydon some tidings of the reason for the gift to her by the unknown, and fails. She will not ask John, and confides to her chum, Georgie, another shop girl, that John will have to come to her. She decides also to accept the attentions Brandon showers upon her—perhaps, she concludes, he will be of more value to her in her career than John. With Brandon, Joanna has her first glimpse of the life she has always yearned for—at a fashionable supper club. Here she sees famous people, the most noted beauties of the city and feels the exhilaration of money and what it means. Thereafter, Joanna meets Yvonne, a beautiful, mysterious woman of the world, with whose career and life she is familiar. She also meets "Ruddy," Ruddyworth, a man much like Brandon, who at once declares his love for her and promises that he is going to make love to her. Yvonne asks Joanna to become her protegee, promising to help her discover a way to make use of her money and to have the sort of pleasure she has always wanted.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

What Kenilworth had said flashed across her mind, his prediction of just this invitation. She fancied that she caught a flicker of his eyelids when she glanced at him. For one brief instant the vision of John framed itself among her thoughts, but it faded quickly when she had shaken her head a little, to drive it away. Any thought of John had become unpleasant. It aroused defiance inside of her, rebelliousness. Always, when he appeared in her mind, she saw herself, at first, going up to him, her face lifted, her lips held pleadingly for the greeting that had been so customary between them. This sort of vision hurt, though. The phase that ran so often across her brain would come back—"Would that fit in, now?" This time it was the thought of John coming to her and finding her with Yvonne. There was something about that which wasn't right. So she gave that little shake of the head and drove John away.

"I'm afraid I would be awfully funny to you," she said to Yvonne, her excitement at the prospect playing in her voice. "I can't be still, for long, because there is so much I want to do but can't think of, that I just run around in circles."

"But I'll help you, perhaps," Yvonne assured her. "I shall have as enjoyable a time about helping you launch yourself, as you, yourself. There will be a motor car to buy—and I've never got over my fondness for picking out motor cars; and jewels, and clothes—it will be a lark, truly!" Joanna would have yielded to Yvonne's suggestion that tonight would be as good as any other time, but while they waited in the foyer of the restaurant-club for Brandon's car and Yvonne's, Brandon murmured to her: "Decision made after midnight are not always safest. Yvonne will welcome you tomorrow, as warmly as tonight. And tomorrow will do you just as well. I am going to drive you home."

"You mean," Joanna said, lightly, "to the rooming-house. Whatever I do, or wherever I go, you must remember that I haven't any!" "She waited a while, while she bit at her lips. Then she finished: "That I haven't had any home, for a long time!"

Joanna Visits Eggleston. So Joanna, a billow of snow white ermine nestled in the cushions of Brandon's limousine, went happily to the place she had called home. Went to the rooming house where Mrs. Adams lost her sleep over flapper lodgers. She thought it would be for the best time.

Realization that she was rich, fabulously rich, like Yvonne Contant, like a movie star, like Mrs. Delancy Jordan, with whose son, Bob, Joanna once had a date negotiated over his mother's shoulder at the silk counter, had settled at last in her groping brain. Her fight for understanding of the fantastic thing that had happened to her was over soothed away by the retrospects of the evening. The feel of the ermine against her cheeks and throat and shoulders, the nearness of Brandon who wore his evening clothes so smartly, the prospects of the morrow when she would move into the aura of Yvonne, symbol of Life, throbbled through her pulses and suffused her alert body with a gentle glow.

For the 20th time she resolved to puzzle no more about the source of the money, or the reason of it. Something would happen to her, of course. She'd meet it on her toes. One thing, though, she must square up. Brandon, whatever his part in her affairs, mustn't think she was—well, the kind of a bell that is all clapper and no ring. She taxed him suddenly: "Why didn't you want me to go to Miss Soutant's tonight? It would have been much easier than tomorrow."

"A wholly selfish reason," Brandon informed her. "You're an important person to someone, you know, for some reason. Decisions you make now are of consequence. I'd rather not have the responsibility of delivering you into anybody's guidance. Then you will not be able to tell me about it later on, if you feel like it."

"Do you think I shall every be sorry?"

"That doesn't follow. Certainly, though, Yvonne Contant represents a distinct theory of what life owes its dependents. You wouldn't adopt her as a counselor in the same impulse that would lead you to go in for—let us say, uplift!"

"Yet you want me to go to her, to learn from her what to do with my money to spend it her way, and to become like her? You knew she was going to ask it. You arranged it."

She saw that she had struck home. For a brief moment Brandon was perturbed. Then he smiled to her. "When you begin to accuse me I know I'm getting on."

"Oh, I shall let you get on fast enough, until I know what's what. Then?"

"There's no use going to a funeral until somebody's dead, is there? We won't be disappointed now."

When he stood with her for parting minutes, in the rooming house reception hall, where a dim light burned its grim reproach to young ladies who breezed in from midnight to four, Brandon suddenly took Joanna's hand in his, and gently drew her to him until she stood quite close, so that he had to lift her chin to look into his face. For a moment she was panic-stricken. It was the prelude of a kiss, she thought. She didn't want Brandon to kiss her. Her lips burned at the threat of it. She would not protest if he asked her or if he took his career without asking. But it would spoil the evening. Still when chaps were decent and had contrived what might be called a good time for lack of a better phrase there was but one coin with which to reward them—the coin that passed frankly as currency. But she didn't want Brandon to take it, and he didn't.

He held her hands and looked down into her eyes silently. She met his gaze steadily, unafraid, but quivering a little. She had reasoned to herself that tonight she had discovered a clue to her fear and dislike of this cynical, good looking, perfectly poised man who impressed her always as if he was taking charge of her. It would be woman, she thought. The woman in her leaped to the defensive before him, and with a sense of futility. Kenilworth she could battle on his own ground. Brandon tortured women, she had concluded. She wasn't ready yet to meet him fairly.

But he spoke softly. "Do you know," he said, "I shouldn't be surprised if you'd win through, after all!" She caught her breath. "Win through?" "Why—what?"

He dropped her hands, instantly, and his manner changed. "You must forget that," he said, mocking again. "It's another case of a funeral with nobody dead yet. At least, don't remember it for a long time."

Georgie, her own new hats and wraps and gowns, Joanna's shower of gifts, hung from the door top, the chandelier and either side of the mirror, so that she might prop back on the bed pillows and examine them. She was awake, and waiting. She had refused all invitations for the evening, both sentimental and hilarious, frankly admitting she couldn't leave her wardrobe at home alone. Joanna threw off her momentary depression, the aftermath of Brandon's sentimentality, and plunged into a gay recital of the night's events. Then Georgie broached her own news.

"John was here tonight!" she announced. "He was at the bank today. Mr. Eggleston sent for him. Mr. Graydon, at the store, had told Mr. Eggleston what you had said—that John had suspected the place the money came from. The bank wanted to put him right. John's got it all through his half-baked mind and he's like a bird dog that's been pointing the wrong way."

Joanna sank onto the bed, the wistfulness haunting her eyes again. Her plans for the morrow began to crumble, and in their place rose something else, vague and unshapen, but before it she stood side by side with John. Then, with a petulant shake of her shoulders she reconsidered her plans, and the arrogance came back into the tilt of her chin.

"But he hurt, Georgie—I don't think—"

"Oh, you can arrange things to suit yourself," Georgie assured her, wisely. "He's got six cylinders under the hood, maybe, but only one works. I've always told you he was full of carbon. He's frightfully cut up."

"That's not it. I knew he would be, someday—it wasn't me he suspected so much as it was any—any girl I mean, who's got knees and isn't ashamed to show them. I'm going to—"

"What?" Georgie prompted her, but Joanna bit her lips and wouldn't finish her sentence.

Heating of American Homes Is Improving Year by Year

The history of the American stove and heating furnace is very interesting and entwined in the growth and progress of this country.
Up until the time that the United States declared her independence, the matter of cooking a meal or heating a home was vastly different from what it is today, and the good housewives of those times had a much harder time to put three meals a day upon her table, or heat her rooms, than her descendants of today.

The Oldest Construction Co. In Atlanta Is Going Strong

Griffin Construction company, the oldest construction company in Atlanta, reports business good. They are in the most prosperous year of their existence, according to Carroll Griffin, vice president.

They have completed this year the new Girls' High school, which is one of the largest and best equipped schools in the south; the Ivy street garage, a six-story reinforced concrete ramp type garage. It is the largest storage garage in the world and is ultra-modern in all its equipment and appointments. The new roundhouse for the Southern Railway company, at the North avenue yards is another fine piece of concrete construction completed a score of years ago, and also the ice storage plant for the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation, at West End.

This company is now engaged in erecting the magnificent new plant for the Southern Ruralist and the Ruralist Press, Inc., on Glenn street, and the Hoke Smith Junior High school on Hill street. They are also busy on several jobs in Jacksonville, Fla., besides numerous small pieces of work in Atlanta.

Griffin Construction company, with W. W. Griffin as its chief executive, was founded in Atlanta in 1906, and has since that time been a part of its foundation a construction business that had been carried on by W. W. Griffin individually for 15 years. In 1915, Carroll Griffin, son of the founder, after leaving Georgia Tech, was made vice president and since that time has taken a leading part in the affairs of the company.

W. W. Griffin, president of the company, was graduated from the old Emory college at Oxford, Ga., and came to Atlanta during the pioneer days when Atlanta was struggling for its present eminent position among the cities of the south. He entered the construction business, taking large and small contracts and executing them with a characteristic efficiency that gained for him a reputation that stands out as the leading asset of the company that bears his name.

RED ASH COAL CO.
ESTABLISHES NEW YARD IN ATLANTA
The Red Ash Coal company, beginning today, opens up a new yard and office at 4 Fraser street, corner of East Hunter street, and they will only handle the genuine Red Ash coal. The reason why this company will only handle this high-grade coal is they want everybody in Atlanta and vicinity to really know what a high-grade coal the genuine Red Ash coal is.

One of the officials of this new company stated Saturday that everybody knows the splendid qualities of the genuine Red Ash coal but the trouble has been that a lot of cheap inferior grades of coal has been sold to the public as being Red Ash coal when it was only a mixed grade of coal and should not be called Red Ash coal. The Red Ash people after considering the matter for some time deemed it advisable to open up their own yard here so as to assure all those who want to buy Red Ash coal that they will get the genuine Red Ash coal. They will get the genuine Red Ash coal if they will give them a ring Walnut 6880 they will send them the best coal in very quick time.

To all those who do not know of the superior qualities of Red Ash coal they claim that it will give more heat for the money than any other coal on the market, and that there is less waste, less ashes and more satisfaction than one can usually get in coal values.

Slump in Cotton Price Seen As Means of Waking South To Cooperative Marketing

South Carolina Growers' Association Holds Farmers Responsible for Break in Cotton Prices.

Columbia, S. C., November 1.—(Special.)—The tremendous slump in the price of cotton has driven hundreds of cotton growers all over the belt into the ranks of the Cotton Growers' Cooperative associations and, it is maintained, a while longer is going to result in a perfect deluge of new members. It is a statement issued by the South Carolina Cotton Growers' Cooperative association. There has been a steady influx of new contracts for the past month into the various associations, the statement says, and last week there was a marked increase.

Slump Aroused Growers.

"When a slump like the present one comes, it serves to arouse a great many of the growers as nothing else can to the fact that they are utterly helpless if they attempt to fight alone," says the statement. "It makes them realize how foolish it is to attempt to fight in any other way but an organized one, and they are beginning to take a price debacle such as this to awaken many of them."

Deliveries to the South Carolina Cotton Growers' Cooperative association continue very far ahead of last season and indications are that the total receipts for this season will far surpass those of last season. The same report comes from the other cooperatives. Some states already have more cotton than all of last season.

Who Is Responsible?

Discussing further the present price of cotton the association's statement says: "Who is responsible for the tremendous slump in the price of cotton, a slump that has carried very far below the cost of production?"

"Certainly it is not the good, loyal members of the Cotton Cooperative Marketing associations, men and women who have delivered every bale of cotton they could possibly control and who have worked in season after season for the advancement of the cooperatives' cause. No one can blame them. Nobody will dare blame them, for everybody knows that but for them the price would be far below what it is now even and would have been far below what it has been all along during the past three years."

"Who then is to blame? Upon whom must the responsibility rest?"

Farmers Are Blamed.

The statement then places the blame upon the farmers who have steadfastly refused to join with their neighbors in the cooperative marketing, upon those who, while not growers of cotton, have done everything in their power to keep the growers from joining with those who could have helped but who have maintained an "air of indifference."

"It took a financial disaster to bring about the birth of cooperative marketing of cotton," says the statement. "It has often occurred to us that perhaps it would take another financial disaster to bring about the birth of cooperative marketing of cotton. It will be a terrible price for the growers to have to pay and the pity of it is that the innocent will have to suffer, too, but cooperative marketing, firmly established, will be well worth the price. If the present tremendous slump in the price of cotton will serve the purpose of awakening the people of the south in their full duty towards the movement, perhaps it will prove a blessing in disguise."

The statement declares that cooperative marketing offers the grower the only way out of the present situation and that every man, woman and child in the south ought to join in an effort to sign every grower in the belt.

BUSINESS—The Security Bond and Mortgage Company was incorporated under the laws of Florida to continue under a more appropriate name, and with larger capital, the Southern real estate first mortgage loan and investment business established and successfully operated since May, 1919, by the Securities Sales Company of Florida.

SECURITY—The security for the bonds of this issue is threefold: The bonds are the direct obligation of the Security Bond and Mortgage Company. They are further secured by the pledge and deposit of dollar for dollar of first mortgages on real estate owned in fee simple by the borrower, the mortgages in no case exceeding sixty per cent of the value of the real estate, as determined by three appraisers, by a bank or mortgage company in the city or town where the real estate is located, by the local real estate board and by the Security Bond and Mortgage Company. They are further secured by the unconditional guarantee as to both principal and interest on each mortgage by the Maryland Casualty Company.

GUARANTEE—The Maryland Casualty Company, with capital and surplus of $10,575,279 and resources of $36,308,124, guarantees unconditionally the payment of principal and interest on each mortgage.

PROPERTIES—The properties securing these guaranteed first mortgages are located in Northern and Central Florida. All of the properties are owned in fee simple by responsible borrowers, and each dwelling or other structure is completed. Completed residences and business properties in Florida, particularly in the Northern and Central parts of the State, are in excellent demand and values are well sustained.

TITLES—The guarantee of the Maryland Casualty Company is unconditional, and does not except the title. Each title, however, is insured by a title insurance company acceptable to the Maryland Casualty Company; or, in places where there are no title companies, each title is examined by an attorney acceptable to the Maryland Casualty Company.

TRUSTEE—All of the guaranteed first mortgages pledged as security for these bonds are deposited with the Maryland Trust Company, a bank and trust company with capital and surplus of $1,500,000 and resources of $16,818,908.43.

TAX REFUND—The Security Bond and Mortgage Company agrees to refund any State, County or Municipal tax which a holder may be required to pay on these bonds up to 5 mills, provided written application for the refund is made within two months after the due date and payment of such tax.

Legal opinions by Messrs. Janney, Ober, Slingluff and Williams, Baltimore, Md., for the bankers and Messrs. Kay, Adams & Ragland, Jacksonville, Fla., for the Company.

GENERAL BUSINESS SITUATION IS GOOD

BY TODD W. WRIGHT.

New York, November 1.—A survey of general business conditions for the month of October reveals almost complete justification for the growing enthusiasm of leaders in the industrial and business worlds.

Virtually every industry is showing great improvement in earnings along with increasing activity, month after month, and the past month has been no exception to the gradual improvement. Trade is excellent and the industries are running about as near capacity as they can do when not under unhealthful stimulus.

It is the complete lack of any boom in the industrial and business world that is the most gratifying evidence of the real prosperity which the nation as a whole is now enjoying. The class of buying which signifies fear of scarcity or rising prices, has not appeared. This is shown in the continued heavy movements of freight cars, which testify that hand-to-mouth buying is still the order of the day.

The gold imports of the past month have dissipated whatever apprehensions existed of higher money rates this fall, and give assurance that funds will be available for the ever increasing expansion.

The fundamental reason for these imports is that payments running to the United States are very much larger than payments running from the United States. The gold imports will continue to come unless we either import more of other commodities instead of gold, reduce our exports, or invest abroad to cover the payments that are coming to us.

Gold is a very valuable commodity. Everybody wants it. It helps to make prices higher and business better. Yet it cannot be doubted that a continuation of gold imports would water all our values, disturb all prices, and wage relations again and eventually would itself out by dislocating our trade relations with the rest of the world.

PRODUCTION INCREASES DURING SEPTEMBER

New York, November 1.—(AP)—The month of September witnessed increased production in basic industries of the United States with a corresponding gain in factory employment, says the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Distribution of commodities, both wholesale and retail, continued in large volume, the level of production remaining virtually unchanged. Wholesale trade was nine per cent larger in September than in August sales in all lines except dry goods, exceeding those of a year ago. Sales of department stores and mail order houses showed considerably more than the usual increase in September, and were larger than a year ago.

WOMAN BANDIT GETS $4,900 LOOT IN DARING COUP

Portland, Ore., November 1.—Police believe the smartly attired young lady who held up a money car of the Portland Police Department here has escaped with the $4,900 loot that she won in the daring adventure.

Dressed in a heavy fur coat, and wearing a veil, the girl jumped aboard the running board of the money car as it was leaving a bank, thrust a revolver against the driver's chest and commanded him to drive out into the residential district.

There she asked the driver's helper to give her the money, which she put in her hand bag. Dismounting from the running board the fashionable young bandit then ordered the driver to take her to the police station, where she was taken and held.

When the police reached the residence of the driver, they found the girl had escaped. She was last seen driving away in a light-colored car.

KANSAS IS KILLED DURING PLANE RIDE TO REGAIN HEARING

Independence, Kan., November 1.—Deaf and dumb since birth, Paul Gibson, 25, saw an article in a newspaper telling how a man recovered his hearing after taking a ride in an airplane. Clutching at this faint hope, Gibson engaged H. H. Calkins, 28, of Parsons, Kan., a pilot, for the experiment.

When the plane reached an altitude of approximately 5,000 feet, spectators saw one wing of the plane snap off and crash to earth. Both men were instantly killed.

ATLANTA BOY CLEARED UPON MURDER CHARGE

Miami, Fla., November 1.—(AP)—"Just a homicide" was the verdict of the coroner's jury in the case against Harry J. Hearn, 18-year-old Atlanta boy, charged with killing his landlady, Mrs. J. D. Timmerlake, in Miami yesterday, by hitting him on the head with a rock during a fight following Timmerlake's order to Hearn to move out immediately because he was playing a saxophone.

The jury deliberated only three minutes. Hearn was immediately released from jail.

Hearn claimed self-defense and said Timmerlake attacked him. He was corroborated by witnesses.

U.S. Crop Report Causes Big Drop in Cotton Price

New Orleans, November 1.—(AP)—The most important development in the cotton market last week was the government's crop estimate Monday, indicating a total yield of 15,290,000 bales, exclusive of linters. The almost immediate effect of this estimate, fully a half million bales in excess of general expectations, was a decline in prices of approximately $2 a bale, compared with closing prices of the preceding business day.

While the market recovered nearly 50 points of this in the two days following the government estimate, owing to trade buying on the scale down and more or less covering by shorts in fear of the effects of freezing weather and rains in the belt, the demand gradually thinned out and prices weakened again under the growing conviction that the crop was so large that frost or other weather damage would not be sufficient to count materially.

Toward the end of the week there were evidences also of a falling off in the spot demand, with October commitments out of the way and, in addition, there developed quite a general liquidation of the December interest.

Prices declined rather sharply on Friday and Saturday, finally breaking through the 15-cent line and settling at 14 1/2 cents. The market was not only the lowest of the season, but the lowest in several years.

As a result of the liquidation of the long interest, the technical position of the market is believed to have been strengthened and the general expectation is that the market will follow the weather in the cotton region has been unfavorable and there has been several days of freezing temperature over the greater portion of the northern section of the belt. Just what damage such weather has done to a crop prospect remains to be seen. That it has put a stop to any further making of late cotton seems certain.
